CONDON, March 10—By Attanto Cable.) A representative of the Associ-ated Press asked Gen. Booth today for an expression of his opinion on the trouble in the Salvation Army in the United States. The general said: "Ballington's action is inexplicable, and is a heart-breaking blow to me. I still hope the differences may be smoothed over, and I cabled to Ballington last even, and I cabled to Ballington last evening the assurance that it was still not too late for forgiveness, and begging him to come to England that I might pray with him. He has, however, not answered."

Gen. Booth was asked what effect he thought Ballington Booth's new movement would have on the Salvation Army. He replied: "I do not think the movement will affect the army, which I hope will unitedly pursue its work on the original lines."

The bill was put on its passage and adopted by 31 to 18. According to Senator Raines, the effects of the bill will be to prevent corruption in excise boards, to stamp out low ginshops and to greatly reduce Sunday selling and other violations by law by saloon-keepers. Although he expects the number of drinking places to be reduced from 25 to 40 per cent., he holds that the increase in the license fee will prevent loss of revenue.

the Rate Cases.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRENS WIRE.)

SAN FRANCISCO March 10.—The hearing of the injunction suit against the Railroad Commissioners to prevent the proposed reduction in freight rates was resumed in the United States Court today. Attorneys for the commissioners wished to introduce as evidence the testimony of C. P. Huntington before the Senate Committee in Washington as tending to show the exact relations of the Central Pacific to the government and the powerful Federal authorities to interfere in the present case. He could not present the testimony immediately, however, and as the court refused to grant further delay, it was decided to proceed without that evidence.

The State having no further evidence to introduce, the railroad commenced its testimony in rebuttal. Depositions of officers of the Southern Pacific were read showing that the freight charges were not excessive and that the railroad would not pay expenses if they were further reduced.

A SPANISH SPY.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The World this morning says: "Two attachés of the Spanish legation in Washington were boasting recently at the Metropolitan Club in that city of the military and naval resources of their country, and one made the remark that Spain could take New York in ten days. Alarmed at this indiscretion his companion hushed him up, and they shortly left the clubhouse. Enough had been said, however, to excite suspicion, and a quiet investigation revealed the cause of the Spaniard's confidence.

"It was discovered that Capt. Charles de la Casa of the Spanish army has been in New York for three months. He has avoided the hotels and clubs and has taken a flat in Fourteenth street. From this street, it is said, he has made many vists to ponts of interest around New York and collected an immense amount of valuable information concerning the fortifications at Willet's Point, Sandy Hook and other points. It is believed he enriched his knowledge with numerous drawings and photographs accurately locating the sites of the mines which would be used in defending the harbor. Recently Capt. de ha Casa's room was broken into and some of his valuable papers are said to be missing. The captain does not know whether it was the work of a barriar, or of a United States Secret Service agent. Capt. de la Casa said last night:

"My work here is simply like that of other military attaches, to go about from place to place inspecting the different military posts, with a view of discovering any improvements which may be serviceable to us. Then I report to the Minister of War in Spain. I have visited Baltimore, St. Paul and other places. I have a letter of introduction from the Secretary of War."

A MATTER OF POLITICS. NEW YORK, March 10,-A dispatch the Herald from Barcelona says tha the anti-American sentiment is increasing instead of abating. The local news the American navy is but a trifle su perior to the Spanish.

Careful investigation shows conclusively that Spanish politics have had a big hand in the Barcelona disturbance. Nearly all the inhabitants here are Catalans, and the Catalans, almost to a man, are Republicans. They are heartily opposed to the present govern-ment and are making demonstrations here against the United States with the direct purpose of putting the govern-ment in a hole and possibly causing its overthrow. There is absolutely no en-thusiasm here over the Cuban war. Whenever the troops start for Cuba they are not even given a cheer. GEN. MERRITT TALKS.

GEN. MERRITT TALKS.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Gen. Wesley Merritt, commander of the United States army in the Department of the Missouri, is at the Waldorf. He denies that he has been called to Washington by the President to investigate Cuba and report upon the rebellion. In regard to the situation there he said; "I thought the Spanish army would be able to crush the suprising this winter, but it seems the Cubans are holding out in a way that is surprising. The rebels have shown excellent staying powers. Their plan not to risk all in a pitched battle, of course, is wise. Their present method of eluding and harassing the Spanish troops is calculated to prolong the war."

As to our army, he said that never before was it so effective as to discipline and organization.

"We have about twenty-five thousand effective men in the army, all in excellent military condition," he continued, "and as to the army we could raise, if the formation of three battalions that is being discussed is carried out, we can easily place 125,000 men in the field."

Gen. Merritt did not care to express an opinion respecting the outcome of a war between Spain and the United States.

PRODDING UNCLE SAM.

MADRID, March 10.—A pamphlet has been published here entitled "The United States vs. Spain," which is believed to have been written by ex-Minister Valera. It points out the al-leged injustice of Congress, and the writer says he believes there will be a revulsion of public opinion in the United States as soon as the truth is known. He regards the situation from an optimistic standpoint, eulogizes an optimistic standpoint, eulogizes American women and says that the men are amiable and hospitable to strangers when not blinded by self-esteem.

A dispatch from Barcelona says that the merchants of that city have agreed not to sell American products in the event of Cleveland approving the Cuban belligerency resolutions. They have also opened a subscription toward a fund which is to be devoted to the purchase of warships.

COLUMBUS (O.,) March 10.—The Grand Operahouse could not hold half f the people wanting admission this fternoon to the Republican State Convention. The bands entertained the crowds in front of the building until the convention was called to order at o'clock and that was all many visitors saw or heard of what is calle McKinley convention. Among the Ohio Congressmen and other prominent Republicans of that State sat ex-Se tary of the Treasury Charles Foster. Gov. Bushnell occupied one of the boxes. The first demonstration was when Chairman Ickes escorted Senatorelect Foraker to the presiding officer's chair, and from that time on one der onstration followed another on the men tion of McKinley's name or references

After prayer by Rev. J. C. Watt Chairman J. M. Ickes reviewed the McKinley campaigns in Ohio and the wo campaigns succeeding his administration and stated at the State con vention in Zanesville last year the party entered into a pledge as sacred as the trinity. The pledge marked an important epoch in the history of Ohio Republicanism. It promised to make Bushnell Governor, Foraker Senator and to use every honorable means to make McKinley President. Two parts of the trinity had been ful-filled and the Republicans of Ohio now assembled to enter sincerely into the faithful execution of the third part of McKinley for the Presidential nation.

These remarks caused such a dem These remarks caused such a demonstration that it was some time before. Ickes could introduce Senator-elect Foraker as the temporary chairman of the convention. When Foraker was introduced there was another bolsterous scene, which was repeated as often as he proceeded to address the convention.

boisterous scene, which was repeated as often as he proceeded to address the convention.

He said the one great question uppermost in the minds of the people today was whether, for the next four years, the country should be ruled by Democracy or Republicans with the saserted that a Republican victory was assured. The Republican party was never before so strong in the nation and, as far as the State of Ohio was concerned, never so united or harmonious. He said that while the convention had come together for the purpose of nominating a ticket and declaring anew the faith that was in the Republicans of the State, that he also had to discharge a higher and more commanding duty. This was the carrying out of the pledges of the last State convention at Zanesville, which was unanimous in the support of Gov. McKinley for the Presidential nomination. It was the duty of the convention to redeem that pledge, as had already been done by the district and county conventions held in the State. It was the duty of this convention to signify to the whole nation that Gov. McKinley has now, and will have at the St. Louis convention, the united, hearty and unqualified support of Ohio. The speaker wished it to be understood, however, that the preference of the Republicans of Ohio for Maj. McKinley was in no sense hostile or antagonistic to any other man whose name is mentioned in connection with that high honor. Particular reference was made to the appreciation of Ohio ans for Thomas B. Reed, Levi P. Morton, William B. Allison, Matthew Stanley Quay and others. Should the St. Louis convention declare for any of these in preference to Ohio's son, he could pledge to that man in advance the electoral vote of Ohio by the largest majority ever given in the history of the State.

est majority ever given in the history of the State. Senator Foraker then paid a glowing senator rotate the part agowing tribute to Maj. McKinley as a neighbor, as a citizen, as a soldier, as a member of Congress, as a framer of the McKinley Tariff Bill and the "foremost advocate of the protective tariff." as Governor of Ohio, and finally as the "ideal man, statesman, the typical American leader and the veritable American idol."

In conclusion Senator Foraker declared that other States were calling upon Ohio's son to accept the highest honor at the nation's gift and that Ohio could not lead the column.

"All we can do," he said," "is to join the procession."

Senator Foraker retired amid a storm of applause. While his speech was shorter than usual, it took a half-hour to deliver it, because of the interruptions from applause and the demonstrations on references to McKinley. Telegrams of greeting were then read from several conventions.

A State committee was selected and the usual committees for the convention's work were appointed, after which the convention adjourned until 10 c'clock tomorrow.

The committees met tonight and the one on resolutions is in for an all-night session, owing to some differences constate issues. The temporary organization will be reported to the convention for its permanent organization. There were reports circulated today that the Foraker men are fighting Congressman Grosvenor for delegate-at-large because he would not pledge himself to Charles L. Kurtz for the Ohio member of the National Committee. While Bushnell, Foraker, Grosvenor and Hanna were recently selected by McKinley at a conference of his friends, for the delegate-at-large in the finals. The sub-committee on resolutions completed its work at midnight and will report to the full committee to-morrow morning, previous to the assembling of the convention. The planks on the tariff and finance were adopted as written by Mr. McKinley and express his views on protection and bi-metallism. The currency resolution is the same as in the national platform of 1892. The resolution endorsing McKinley is as strong as it could be made. The embarrassment on certain temperance State legislation was covered by endorsement of the present Legislature which defeated radical measures. There is nothing specially new in the declaration, but the preamble is a caustic indictment of President Cleveland's administration.

ORY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.

WASHINGTON, March 10. — The crowds which filled the Senate galleries today in anticipation of an exciting Cuban debate were not disappointed.
Today two new phases of the subject made their appearance, and each afforded a debate which aroused Senators and spectators to a high state of interest and excitement.

Senator Lodge of Masachusetts arose

Senator Lodge of Masachusetts areset to a question of personal privilege, and in vigorous words rebuked the Spanish minister, Señor de Lome, for his recent criticisms of Senators. Senator Teller added his opinion that a repetition of the minister's action should be followed by his dismissal. Senators Gray and Hale mantained that Senatorial privilege and prerogative should not be strained to close the mouth of the Span-ish minister, Senator Lodge did not ish minister, Senator Lodge did not press for any definite action.

The incident was hardly closed when the subject came up in another form. Senator Hoar had asked that his resolution postponing the entire Cuban subject until April 6 go over until tomorrow. This aroused Senator Sherman to an energetic and feeling protest. He declared that Senator Hoar's resolution was a reflection on the Committee on Foreign Relations, and was an effort to shelve the Cuban resolutions after weeks of discussion and overwhelming votes in both houses. The two yenerable Senators, Sherman and Hoar, engaged in a vigorous colloquy.

Senator Morgan and other Senators were drawn into the personal conflict, and for half an hour it waged, sometimes with deep earnestness, but more often with amusement, caused by the energy of the white-haired participants. Senator Sherman finally withdrew his objection, and Senator Hoar's resolution went over till tomorrow, but not until he had made a brief but telling speech against what he termed the meddling policy of Congress in foreign questions.

The latter part of the day was given

The latter part of the day was given up to a continuance of Senator Turpie's speech in opposition to the claim of Mr.

REGULAR SESSION.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.) WASHINGTON, March 10.-SENATE —As soon as the journal had been read Senator Lodge of Massachusetts rose to a question of personal privilege. He sent to the desk and had read the Span-ish minister's reference in an interview to Senator Lodge's utterances, calling in question the translation of a state-ment attributed to Gen. Wayler, in which the latter declared he would "exterminate" the insurgents. Senator Lodge said the literal rendering of Weyler's language would be that he would "clean out" the large insurgent bands and "controlled" the most senator bands and "controlled". ler's language would be that he would "clean out" the large insurgent bands and "exterminate" the small ones. Senator Lodge said he did not wonder at the extreme sensitiveness of the Spanish rinister adopting the course he had. It was pretty well established that the debates in the Senate and House were purely domestic matters, and it was not proper for the representative of a foreign country to communicate, except through the State Department. If an American minister in Europe discussed political affairs there, he would be sent home.

Senator Lodge read from a letter of Daniel Webster, when Secretary of State, protesting against the statement by the Austrian minister as to domestic matters. The Senator added an emphatic protest against public comment by any diplomatic representative on the debates in Congress. The Constitution protected Senators for language used in debate. It was one of the safeguards of free speech.

Senator Gray said the United States should proceed according to the judgment of a self-respecting nation, unmoved by emeutes at Valencia or Madrid, and without being turned aside to discuss the question of a translation between a Senator and a minister. Senator Gray said he would be quick to resent an attack on the privileges of a Senator, but in all fairness he thought it hardly worth while to stretch the Senatorial prerogatives and privileges in order to question a gentleman who had no power to reply in behalf of Spain. There should be some concession to the stream out the desired for the words of Senator Sherman which left no doubt to occur.

Senator Hale added that in the Sack-ville-West case the letter bore on an election about to occur.

sent an attack on the privileges of a Senator, but in all fairness he thought it hardly worth while to stretch the Senatorial prerogatives and privileges in order to question a gentleman who had no power to reply in behalf of Spain. There should be some concession to the stress of the situation.

Senator Teller of Colorado said the rule was unvarying against a communication by a foreign minister, except through the State Department. Twice had foreign ministers been sent home for statements of less importance than this. "But, considering the circumstances," added Senator Teller, "had I been in authority, I would not have sent him home for this offense, but I would have had the Secretary of State, in the most kindly way, suggest that a repetition of the offense would lead to his going home."

There was no probability that Spain repetition of the offense would lead to his going home."

There was no probability that Spain would dissent in an offensive way to the passage of the pending resolution, Senator Teller said. Spain knew we had a right to recognize belligerents. Spain would naturally show some feeling, but she would not go to war. There was a ripple of applause which the vice-President checked when Senator Teller referred to his sympathy with the Cubans.

"I would be delighted," said he," to hear that Havana had passed into the hands of the insurgents. I would be delighted to hear that the insurgents had run the Spanish soldiers into the sea." But, the Senator added, he felt no irritation over student ebullitions in Spain. In conclusion he vigorously asserted that the American people would not tolerate any dictation or criticisms from foreign representatives accredited here.

Senator Chandler of New Hampshire also thought the Spanish minister hed

"I desire to say," interposed Senator forgan, "that the Spanish minister alsquotes on the floor of the Senate."

the careful tone of the Spanish minister, who, he said, had observed all the courtesies of the human language. With regard to the general question as to the propriety of men in high official stations expressing their views, he declared that the press of today had invaded realms not dreamed of thirty years ago. Great men did not hesitale to make known their opinions, not only on literary questions, but on vital questions of international comity. He cited Gladstone's expression on the Venezuelan question. At this point Senator Gray came forward with a suppositifious case.

Senator Gray came forward with a sup-posititious case.

"Suppose," said he, "that some mem-ber of the British House of Commons should read in the House, from a sup-positious case, a statement that be-fore Ands was executed he had been tortured by Gen. Washington; that his eyes had been burned from their sock-ets and that he had been subjected to all sorts of indignities. Would it be unbecoming in the American ambassaunbecoming in the American ambassa-dor to call attention to the fact that the alleged history was unauthenti-cated and that a mistake had been Senator Hale readily agreed that senator hate readily agreed that there could be no impropriety in such a course. If such a thing should hep-pen, he said, he had no doubt that Mr. Bayard would send a letter to the Lon-don Times, setting right the truth of history.

Hayard would send a letter to the London Times, setting right the truth of history.

Senator Teller challenged the analogy of the suppositions. That would simply be a discussion of historical events. In this instance Señor de Lome's statement was intended to offset action on measures pending in the Senate.

Again taking up the thread of his argument, Senator Hale referred to the message sent by the Prince of Wales to the American people through the New York World. Royalty, he thought, had not abated its dignity by that act. It was simply a recognition of the now universally-acknowledged fact that all public men went to the newspapers, magazines and reviews to write themselves down in matters of great public moment. Until the Spanish minister, he concluded, by false criticism overstepped the bounds of propriety, he did not think he should be subject to censure or peproach.

he concluded, by false criticism overstepped the bounds of propriety, he did not think he should be subject to censure or reproach.

Senator Lodge, who had opened the discussion, again got the floor and agreed that this sort of debate over the utterance of a representative of a foreign government was unseemly, but he protested that the matter had not been brought into the Senate by him. But against a foreign minister's words, charging that he had been imposed upon "maliciously and fraudulently" as read here, he thought he should reply. He had shown that the Spanish minister's statement was false. He had no fault to find with the eloquent defense of the Spanish minister, but even a United States Senator was entitled to some rights. (Laughter.) He again read the words of the Spanish minister,
"appealing" from what had been said in the Senate to the "common sense of the American people."

"While we are on the subject of history," he continued, "it might be well for Senators to recall the case of Genet, the French Minister to the United States, who also took an appeal to the American people, and whom George Washington turned out of the country. Would Washington be called a 'jingo' and taken to task for his action? In his day and generation he was considered a man of good judgment."

Senator Gray interjected that Genet had gone so far as to enlist troops.
Senator Lodge responded that this was not the main offense. The Senator recalled the case of Lord SackvilleWest, who was asked to retire for giving advice as to how to vote at an election.

"That was a private letter, not meant election.

"That was a private letter, not meant Senator Hale added that in the Sack-

Teller.

Senator Hale added that in the Sackville-West case the letter bore on an election about to occur.

Senator Lodge insisted that the case was analogous to the present one.

This closed the exciting incident in the Cuban question, and the Senate proceeded with the usual morning business. The debate had had the effect of filling every agailable seat in the Senate galleries. The diplomatic corps was again well represented, several of the ministers and secretaries being accompanied by ladies of the diplomatic corps. The floor of the Senate also was crowded, members of the House filling the rear and side areas.

Another exciting incident occurred when Senator Hoar's resolution, introduced yesterday, providing that the Cuban question go over until April a next, was laid before the Senate. Senator Hoar asked that it go over until tomorrow, as he was in poor health and did not feel able to speak on the resolution today.

Senator Sherman was quickly on his

the subject back to the Committee on Foreign Relations. I will most decidedly object."

There was a snap to the words of Senator Sherman which left no doubt of their earnestness. The two venerable Senators, Sherman and Hoar, stood side by side, their desks adjoining, and the colloquy proceeded at short range.

Senator Hoar expressed great surprise that the Ohio Senator should object to granting the usual courtesy to another Senator.

Senator Sherman responded that the motives for this resolution were self-evident. It postponed and delayed action. It turned the discussion into a mooted debate.

"The Senator from Ohio is a man of penetration, of great scientific attainments." answered Senator Hoar, "but I doubt whether he has so mastered the science of the X rays as to penetrate my brain and ascertain my motives in offering this resolution."

Senator Hoar said his only purpose in urging this resolution was to call attention to some new practices growing up in dealing with grave foreign questions. Instead of having effective action by the legislative branch proceeded alone in a concurrent resolution to express an ineffective opinion. It was all a mooted question. Congress is not bound; the President is not bound, the people are not bound. Senator Hoar said he objected to doing business "with one-half of the pair of scissors." If we wanted to cut any knots let us get both halves of the scissors. Senator Sherman again interrupted, but Senator Hoar mayed him aside with emphasis, to the great amusement of the Senators and the crowded galleries. Senator Hoar insisted on making his explanation without interruption, to the suggestions of the Ohio Senator that an attack had been made on the Committee on Foreign Relations. A very grave foreign question was before the Senator and the Senator Hoar making his explanation without interruption, to the suggestions of the Ohio Senator that an attack had been made on the Committee on Foreign Relations. A very grave foreign question was before the Senator should an interrupted from

"I will not," responded Mr. Hoar,

"I will not," responded Mr. Hoar, decisively.
"But I demand that you shall; you have made an incorrect statement, insisted Senator Morgan.
Senator Hoar said he would, of course, yield for a correction.
Senator Morgan pointed out that his statement as to laying down his sword was the conclusion of a previous statement that, if it became necessary, if war came, then he would place his sword on the table of the committee, and if Spain wished to take it up she could do so.

Senator Hoar went on to urge the facts of the Cuban question had been presented to the Senate. The letters transmitted by the President had never been read in the Senate.

Senator Sherman jocularly interrupted to say that the Massachusetts. Senator was absent for two weeks and did not know what had been done. He (Sherman) had read to the Senate from these letters.

did not know what had been done. He (Sherman) had read to the Senate from these letters.

Senator Hoar responded that everything the Ohio Senator read or spoke did not necessarily become widely known. He proceeded to argue that Congress was meddling too much in diplomacy, and it was meddling without any information as to facts.

"How would you get information from the inaccessible quarters of Cuba?" asked Senator Morgan.

"Will we act without information because we cannot get information?" questioned Senator Hoar.

Senator Morgan raised another laugh by asking Senator Hoar where he got his information on which he urged such energetic action as to Armenia.

Senator Chandler added to the amusement by reading Senator Hoar's dispatch to Secretary Oiney as to Armenia, in which the Massachusetts Senator said his voice and vote could be depended on, even to the extent of treating the oppressors of Armenia as pirates and enemies of the human race. Senator Chandler sarcastically asked if Senator Hoar intended to add to this dispatch "provided no action is taken before April 6."

Senator Hoar insisted that his course as to Armenia was the result of investigation, and that he was ready to stand as to Armenia was the result of investi-gation, and that he was ready to stand on that investigation. That is what he asked the Senate to do, to investigate before acting.

At this point the presiding officer announced it was 2 o'cock, the close of the morning business.

Senator Hoar again asked that the Senator Hoar again asked that the resolution go over without prejudice until tomorrow, as his health was not such as to permit his going on. Senator Sherman did not renew his objection, and the resolution went over.

The Dupont contest was then taken up and Senator Turple resumed his speech against the claims of Mr. Dupont to a seat in the Senate. Senator Turple had not concluded when, at 4:35 o'clock, the Senate went into executive session, and soon after adjourned.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT. WASHINGTON, March 10.—The subcommittee of the Committee on Ways and Means, having under consideration several bills relating to reciprocity and commercial treaties, will have a series of public hearings at the Capitol in Washington, commencing, Monday, March 16, and closing Sunday, March 21, to which all persons interested in these subjects are invited to appear. The committee desires practical information concerning the operations of the reciprocity treaties that were negotiated by the last administration and the effect of their repeal: also concerning the obstacles in

There was a large attendance at the annual thank-offering meeting held yesterday afternoon at Immanual Church, by the Woman's Missionary Society, Mrs. Samuel Minor presided.

After a song and prayer service, Miss Emeline Parsons read the secretary's report. Mrs. Bradbeer read an intensely-interesting sketch of the life of Mrs. Amy Saxton Fulton, the missionary supported in Japan by the society, Mrs. Fulton has been in the work for the last six years. Her last letter, dated January 6, was read, and gave an interesting account of the work of herself and her husband.

Mrs. Sophie P. Wisner, from Canton, China, gave an instructive account of how the missionaries reach the women, by visiting them in their homes, at the day schools, through the hospital and dispensary, and in the boarding school. Rev. Ng Pung Chew, pastor of the Chinese church in this city, talked of the Work in China, and Miss Kath-

"Two fortifications could be erected on the St. Lawrence River, They could be supplied with 12, 10 or 3-inch guns, with disappearing carriages. With fifty or sixty feet of sand, or with thirty feet of concrete these forts would be proof against any guns which could be carried on gunboats whose draught is light enough to enable them to come up the river. The gunboat which succeeded in passing one of these forts would not be likely to get beyond the second. Fortifications of the same kind should be built at Detroit."

Lieut. Thompson illustrated with drawings the new heavy ordnance with which it is proposed to make altogether 700 rifles of 15, 12, 10 and 8-inch calibers. The appropriation is to be available at the rate of $10,000,000 a year. There are twenty-eight ports to be fortified. The speaker showed a map giving his solution of the defense of the New York harbor.

GY TELEGRAPH TO THE TIMES.)
VICTORIA (B. C.,) March 10.—(Special Dispatch.) The authorities in Korea had not, according to late advices from Seoul, succeeded in putting an end to the troubles which have teen agitating the country for the past month. The natives are very hostile to-ward the Japanese, and the latter were frequently called upon to defend their lives and property, often with little success, On the other hand, the Koreans show partiality toward the Russians who have practically taken charge of the empire. The King and new min-ister are still at the Russian Legation, their policy being unsettled, the rela-tions between the ministers are strained, and rupture seems inevitable.

Kin Hel Shi, in company with a royal messenger dispatched for him, a rived at Seoul and had an audience with the King, who appointed him to the Premiership. Instead of accepting the appointment, Kin censured the King for having murdered two of the old officers, and declined the appointment. The kingdom has been reduced to a state of political disorder, the government being entirely powerless to suppress the insurrection in the provinces. The ministers also suspect one another, and are intriguing for each other's downfall. The rebels are strong and well armed in many of the provinces, and are causing much trouble.

The American and English residents of Seoul condemn the inhumanity of the new Korean Cabinet. Greathouse pro-tested most strongly that police officials who so brutally butchered the two old ministers must be punished, and the new government was greatly dismayed. The policy of the Japanese government to deal with Korea has been definitely de-cided. In compliance with the views of all the powers, the Japanese govern-ment decided to adopt a course calcu-lated to avoid any conflict with Russia. and resolved to cooperate with Russia in all matters connected with Korea. This proposal was communicated to the Russian government, which warmly the Empress of India, it is stated that the fast United States cruiser Olympia left Kobe at 5 p.m., January 22, followed five hours later by the Empress of India, that Admiral McNair took the opportunity to make a trial trip of the Olympia, which ship is credited with a speed of 21.69 knots, and that the Empress arrived in Nagasaki four hours ahead of her. The real facts are these: The Olympia's boller-power consists of four main boilers and two auxiliaries. The Olympia left Kobe with fires under the two main boilers and one auxiliary, or exactly one-half her one auxinary, or exactly one-nair ner boller-power. No other fires were started during the trip. At that between Yokohama and Kobe. At that time the Olympia had fires under all bollers, but the very heavy westerly gale obliged us to slow down before the trial had hardly commenced. She gave us, however, a glimpse of what she might do. At 6 a.m., January 21, the ship's log read 20 knots. With stopwatch and two Walker patent logs, and shelfing the other. one checking the other, I logged her 21 knots between 6 and 7 a.m. This was under natural draft. That speed is somewhat nearer what the Olympia can make than what she was making when the Empress of India passed us in Shimonozuki Straits."

Brown was too ill to appear before the Congregational council this morning, and his attorney announced that he was in a serious condition. He appears to be suffering from a slight attack of pneumonia. His bronchial tubes are badly affected, and, according to Attorney Nagle, his mind is also affected as a result of the great mental strain to which he has been subjected during the last few months, jected during the last few months, The attorney said he doubted if Brown

The attorney said he doubted if Brown would ever entirely recover.

The council proceeded without Brown, and a very lively session was the result. After Mrs. Paddock, a member of the church, had testified that Dr. Brown had called upon Mrs. Davidson to address a prayer-meeting, Miss Overman was called for cross-examination. The prosecution had prepared a surprise in the shape of a number of letters which the judge-advocate read and asked Miss Overman to identify.

vocate read and asked Miss Overman to identify.

Attorney Nagle, who is representing Dr. Brown's interest, objected strenuously to the reading of the letters, but the moderator ruled that they should be read. Nagle then said that, if the investigation was to be conducted in such a manner, he saw no use for him to remain. He did not leave, however, but continued to fight every point. There were ten letters in all read by the judge-advocate, and, although it was not stated where they were obtained, it is supposed they were furnished by Mrs. Davidson. Miss Overman identified all the letters as having been probably written by her. One letter, dated July 1, 1895, she said had been re-written in the same manner as letters to Mrs. Tunnell.

again in the afternoon. After adjournment Nagle and Miss Overman tried to bersuade the moderator to listen to their objections as to the manner of conducting the investigation, but the moderator said the ruling had been made. and could not be changed.

At the afternoon sesson, Mrs. Brown, wife of the accused minister, took the stand in her husband's defense. She said they had been married thirty years and had always lived happliy together. She told of meeting Miss Overman in Tacoma and of the introduction of Mrs. Stockton to Dr. Brown by Mrs. Cooper. Mrs. Brown said the reason she had objected to Mrs. Stockton as a member of the church choir was on account of her voice, which she thought was not good enough. Then she told about the row over the Turkish tea, to which Mrs. Stockton was refused admission, and said that Mrs. Cooper requested a private conference with Dr. Brown and herself, swearing them to secrecy, Mrs. Cooper warned them against Mrs. Stockton, saying she was a bad woman and was the mistress of a wealthy man of this city. Mrs. Cooper said she knew this when she introduced Mrs. Stockton, saying she was a bad woman and was the mistress of a wealthy man of this city. Mrs. Brown said that Miss Overman had visited at her house, not at Dr. Brown's request, but at her own, as Miss Overman was a great help to her. Mrs. Brown said her husband went to Tacoma with Miss Overman has remained in her house at her invitation. Mrs. Brown said her husband was loyal to her and to his home and that she knew that there had been no improper relations between Dr. Brown and Mrs. Stockton, or any other woman. gar industry if the reply be not satisfactory.

Under the present Hawaiian tariff California wine is charged 15 cents a gallon duty. It is now proposed to increase this to 30 cents a gallon on wine of less than 14-per cent. alcohol and to 50 cents a gallon on all wine above that alcoholic strength. As nearly all the wines sent from here are sweet, containing about 20 per cent. of alcohol, they would have to pay a duty of 50 cents a gallon. The viticulturists of California have had great difficulty in resisting the inroads of Japanese sakt, which pays only 15 cents duty and realize that if the proposed increase of over 200 per cent. is added to their product it will be driven from the Hawaiian market and the sweetwine trade be effectually destroyed.

The warning has been given that if this is carried out the people of California will not rest until they have secured the abrogation of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty, whereby the Sandwich Islands are benefited several mil-cerning the establishment of direct commercial relations between San Diego and Japan was obtained yesterday from a private letter from A. H. Butler, formerly of this city, who is now in the cotton district of Texas buying up large consignments of cotton for shipment direct to Japan through the port of San Diego. He is the agent in this country of the Osaka Cotton Spinning Association.

Steps were taken to learn the most favorable route from the cotton districts to Japan by way of some Pacific Coast port, and agents of the Japanese manufacturers have visited San Francisco, Puget Sound and San Diego, obtaining this information. That San Diego has been definitely decided upon as presenting the most advantages for the development of this commerce, and also in connection with the shipment of iron ore, is shown by Butler's letter.

Butler's correspondent here is Gen. W. E. Webb, owner of the great Tepustete iron mines of Lower California. He writes: "I have just shipped the first ten carloads of cotton purchased by me, through the port of San Francisco, leaving Texas via the Southern Pacific. I am now arranging for the second shipment, which will go via the Santa Fé to San Diego, for trans-shipment to Japan. Hereafter all shipments of cotton to the Japanese factory will be sent via San Diego."

Butler then goes on to say that by this arrangement almost five hundred miles of railroad haul is saved, and that even by trans-shipment from here to San Francisco by coast steamers, a saving will result. But this method will obtain only while arrangements are being completed for the sending of Japanese steamers direct to San Diego, bringing the wares of the east and returning with cotton and iron.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—The coast-defense vessel Momednock, the keel of which was laid at Mare Island navy-yard twenty-one years ago, made her first appearance in San Francisco harbor today. She was on her trial run, having been made ready for sea at the navy-yard, a few days ago.

She presented very much the same appearance as the Monterey, with her double turrets, except that she seemed to stand higher out of the water. The Monadnock has led a Rip Van Winkies existence for twenty-one years, except at times there has been a spasmodic awakening aboard her. She was-gommenced in 1875 and on lines that would have led, to the completion-of a monitor of that period. Then came a tong delay, succeeded by short periods of progress until, in 1885, she was launched. Since she was commenced ideas have changed as to naval fighters and she is as near the modern type as designing and engineering skill can make her. She has two turrets, heavily armored, and carries four heavy guns, with a strong battery of rapid-firing guns. As a fighter she is rated well up with the Monterey and the two could easily dispatch anything now in the Pacific.

Microbes that Do Good. Microbes that Do Good.

There is a microbe which makes plants grow. It is the mysterious agent which enables all vegetable growths to absorb nitrogen, their chief food. Without its assistance plant life would entirely disappear from the earth and in consequence mankind and animal life would perish. This beneficent microorganism is so small that it can only be seen when magnified 800 diameters. It is shaped like a little ball. The microbes multiply at an enormous rate. Their business is to absorb nitrogen from the soil and let the plant absorb it from them. Recently an experiment was tried in Florida with a tract of ground which was barren and would produce nothing. It was found that the soil was right in nitrogen, but none of the micrococci were present. So a number were introduced and a wonderful crop was the result. The microbes in some plants, such as peas, beans, etc., Graham McAdam, a lawyer, was arrested crop was the result. The microbes in yesterday at New York on a beach warrant some plants, such as peas, beans, etc. some plants, such as peas, beans, etc., absorb nitrogen from the air. Nitrogen is the most valuable of plant foods, but is expensive, costing 18 cents a pound. Sometimes agriculturists put nitrogen on their fields when cheap potash would do as well. All the potash used in this country comes from a single mine in Germany. The deposits in that locality had their origin in a sea which existed thousands of years ago, and which receded leaving lakes which communicated with the ocean by small channels. As the waters of these lakes evaporated they were constantly replenished through these channels. This continued until the deposits of salt reached a great thickness.

Col. John A. Cockerill writes to the New York Herald from Korea that there is no earthly use for the United States maintaining a costly legation in that country; that an agent paid a couple of hundred dollars a year would be entirely competent to transact all the business such a legation has to attend to. He speaks in very high terms of the men constituting the legation service there, but maintains that there is next to nothing that they can effect, and that they are in the position of a maintain the vicinity of a militia target. There is abundant reason to believe that the colone's conclusions are eminently sensible and just. A Newspaper Man's Ideas.

* All My Store, all My Capital, All My Experience

Devoted to making a specialty of Men's and Boys' Shoes. My aim is to carry the largest stock and the greatest variety of these that there is in the state, and to prove to the public that by making this thing a specialty, I can and do furnish them better bargains than they can get in any general store. I have at the present moment newer. nicer, more stylish shoes and a greater variety of them, for Men and Boys, than I have ever seen in any other single store; and I know the prices are low. I feel perfectly confident that no buyer will

In fact we can suit you in most any class of property. If you want a home or a business or anything in the line of real estate call on the OLD MAN and FRED. Pomona, Cal. 8-10-11-13

Well, you'll see the "Gem of the Foothills' when you see that town. While you're there turn west from the First National Bank, go three blocks, and you'll see just west of the school building of the Gem of the "Gem of the Foothills" one of the prettiest 18-acre 5-year-old Washington navel orange groves in Southern California. The crop now hanging on the trees is not for sale, but the trees and ground are. The crop is sold to the Earl Fruit Co. Now to figures: You can get that grove for $11,700 ($650 per acre,) and if you'll take a day off and investigate you'll find you can't duplicate that grove for less than $100 per acre, and you'll have hard work to do that. If you don't believe that, try it and see. If you want a "sure thing" and would like to contract nest year's crop for 10 per cent. on the purchase price right on the trees, I'll give you secured contracts with pleasure—and profit. You know that grove will increase in income and value rapidly, by jumps, for next 4 or 5 years, and even longer. Aside from that, it will sell for town lots at a handsome figure in a short while. Be sure and see mell you want one of the best buys in the State. You may well wonder that I will sell it so cheap, but see me and let me talk with you about it. Don't forget that the water that goes with it is worth at least $2000, and costs you about $225. See owner. GOING TO MONROVIA?

3162.50 per acre; $2000 cash, balance 1, 2 and 3 years.

In this valley alfalfa is king, and 100 miners' inches of water goes with every ranch
I sell, which will flood 10 acres in 10 hours at a cost of 10c an hour. Nature supplies this valley with water, whether it rains or not, from the San Gabriel Mountains, conveyed by the Old and New San Gabriel Rivers. Los Angeles is a market for everything we raise and you can have something to seli every day in the year.

Downey shipped 50 carloads of oranges last season. This year we will ship 75 cars.

My horse and carriage is watting to show you the most productive valley for all purposes in the State.

LOCAL OIL MARKET.

STEADY, BUT AN ADVANCE D PRICES ANTICIPATED.

Market Expected to Stiffen When the Enoch Talbot Comes Home. Oil Exchange Continues to Make Sales at Present Prices-Field

Sales of oil at the exchange price-70 cents a barrel—are being made steadily and if the demand for the stuff continues as it is at present, a respectable advance may be soon looked

The exchange board of directors was to have met last Monday, but the death of ex-Secretary Cochran's son prevented the meeting, Maj. Cochran being a member of the board. The question of raising the scale a peg or two would have been considered Mon-day, and will be at the meeting next Monday.

DIRECTORS' POLICY.

The market hardly warrants an immediate raise, though, and it is not likely that oil will be "builed" by the likely that oil will be "builed" by the exchange, unices there is a fighting chance of making the advance stick. The directors realize that "to bite off more than they could chew" would be the worst sort of policy. Slow and sure is their motto, and their success in bringing oil up from 30 to 70 cents a barrel within the past two months, indicates that the "sureness" part is the most conspicuous feature on the bill.

But while the exchange directors may not put oil up next week, they are certain to do so in the near future. When the fact is established that oil can be transported cheaply and successfully to San Francisco—and the first voyage of the Enoch Talbot will establish that—then the market will stiffen so suddenly that some people may be very greatly surprised. Conservative oilmen think that a barrel of the crude stuff will be worth $1, and the passage of time will but make oil more valuable.

ENOCH TALBOT'S TROUBLES.

ENOCH TALBOT'S TROUBLES. The bark Enoch Talbot has thus far had a rough time of it, though Mr. Bots-ford, her owner, thinks the accounts of ford, her owner, thinks the accounts of her misfortunes have been rather overdrawn. But very little oil was lost from the vessel, while she was at sea, as the tanks were measured when the vessel was brought into Port Los Angeles, and found to be almost full. No word has yet been received at the exchange of her departure for the north. While at the wharf at Port Los Angeles, nearly one thousand more barrels of oil will be loaded upon the vessel, making about 6900 barrels which she will take to San Francisco.

to San Francisco DOHENY WAS NOT CAUGHT. It has been reported through the field that E. L. Doheny, the pioneer oil man of the city, was caught short when the recent unexpected advance was made in the price of oil, the supposition being that Mr. Doheny had made long contracts to deliver oil at the prevalent prices, supposing that he could buy steadily and continue to deliver and make his profit. This story is declared to be untrue by those who are in a position to know, as, although Mr. Doheny is perhaps the heaviest dealer in the field, he is also reputed to be the heaviest producer as well. Doheny last week bought two wells of Mr. Lathrop, and these are estimated to be good for 100 barrels a day.

. CZARSKE INQUEST. The Jury Gave a Non-committal

An inquest was held at Kregelo & Bresee's yesterday morning over the body of Fred Czarske, the Hungarian saloon-keeper who died at the Re-ceiving Hospital Monday, from a wound received Friday evening in a drunken brawl.

The evidence was conflicting, but in the main it seemed to show that Czarske and. Bennett had both drunk enough to become quarrelsome. Czarske seems to have struck the first blow. It was asserted that he knocked Bennett down and tried to jump on him, but Bennett wriggled out of his way. Then Czarske went back and leaned against the bar. Some of the witnesses say that Bennett got up and made a sudden rush at Czarske, giving the fatal wound. Others maintain that Czarske made a threatening movement and then came Bennett's attack.

Those who testified were Mrs. Loretta Czarske, the widow of the murdered man; James E. McDowell and E. J. McDowell, Mrs. Czarske's brothers; Dr. E. A. Bryant, the police surgeon, who performed the autopsy, and William Burke and Casey Castleman, the two local wheelmen who were with Bennett on the fatal night.

The verdict the jury decided upon after weighing all the conflicting testimony, was rather non-committal. It said that Fred Czarske came to his death by a knife wound by the hand of one Jim Bennett. drunken brawl. The evidence was conflicting, but in

THIS FAIR NEW WORLD.

In the present condition of the political world on this continent it is well that we make a somewhat closer study of the nations to the south of us than we have heretofore done.

There are many intelligent people in the United States who are well informed as to European affairs, and the general condition of the Old World peoples, who have a very confused knowledge of affairs throughout the South American continent. They have the impression that the people of that vast continent are mostly employed in gigantic revolutions and devoting but little time to those things which tend to progress. But a general review of situation throughout the South American states shows that the people of these states are not the laggards that so many have supposed them

Their increased means of communication with the outside world has had a stimulating effect upon their civilization, as have also their largely-developed means of international communication. They are no longer isolated states governed by despotic dictators, with all the power which controls law and order in the hands of those who are strongest. The Argentine shows a stability in its political affairs that has scarcely been broken for many years, and the last attempted revolution in that section was very insignificant in its character and was speedily quelled. Recent Brazilian difficulties, it is claimed, were wholly the result of a misunderstanding of some few of the leaders, and of the people, when action was taken to fully determine the form of government which was to control them. This matter being now satisfactorily settled that republic may pe for permanent tendant progress and prosperity.

Bolivia, the inland republic, has been perhaps, more subject to turmoils and revolutions than most of its sister states. But as its means of communication are increased the likelihood of revolutions is radically decreased. There is no civilizer like the railroad It carries with it the throb of progres and the energy of advancement. It is the isolated nations of the earth who are given to quarrels. Those who know relatively little of the outside world are apt to be supercilious and defiant. But the railroad is now pushing its way through almost every section of South America. QUAY'S PLATFORM.

The platform on which Senator Quay bases his Presidential boomle "More protection, more money more public improvements and municipal reform." This is anticlimactic. I is also unique. The subject of municipal reform, while to be commended in its place, is as appropriate in a Presidential platform as a resolution on in ternational law in a township caucus 'More public improvements" is more or less, as Gen. Hancock said of the "local issue," and money," whatever Mr. Quay may mean by this clause, will always find in lorsement in its personal application to the elector.

In the first "plank" of his platform the Pennsylvania Senator has, however, touched upon an issue which is to coming campaign. No amount of effort on the part of Democrats, Populists or silverites, or of all the rag-tag and bob-tail combined, will avail to divert popular attention from the issue of protection to American industries The object-lesson taught by the Wil ready been learned by the people at large. The results of this act. compared with those of the preceding Mc Kinley law, present too marked a con trast, and are too plainly and too severely felt by the men of the factories and the fields, to be forgotten in the

Never before in any national cam paign has a single issue assumed more commanding importance than that of protection to American labor and American industries will assume in the coming contest. This being true, ward as the standard-bearer of the Republican party any other man than William McKinley, the profoundest student, the chief apostle, and the ablest exponent of the doctrine of protection. The New York Sun of March 1 contains the following: "It was, indeed, an honor that was conferred upon Mrs Clara Foltz, when Gen. Tracy appeared before the appellate division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the purpose of presenting her credentials as a candidate for admission to the New York bar, accompanying the letter with a certificate of qualifications bearing the signature of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of California, at the bar of which State she has practiced for seventeen years. Presiding Justice Van Brunt courteously received the papers, with an indication that Gen. Tracy's motion would be granted. When granted, Mrs. Foltz will have a standing at our har the same as that of the Hon. Joseph H. Choate, the sixty-year-old man eloquent; the Hon, Frederic R. Coudert, the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, or any other lawyer. May she h the distinguished place which she has won. We cannot think of the name of any woman lawyer in this part of the country who has yet gained the very highest fame in the legal profession, or in any branch of it. But there is still opportunity for every aspiring woman, married or single, who made a study of the law in any of the several law schools for women. We have but one advisory word for each of them: Advance!"

Maj. McCloughry of the Pontiac (Ill.) Reform School, suggests a remedy for the tramp evil. Labor, he says, is the only cure. As no-tramp can be bribed to work, labor should be made compulsory. "I would put the tramp to work wherever found and make him earn his food and lodging. To do that I would want a law ing vagrancy a crime. The ordinance reported on Monday by the City Attorney prohibiting the tying of teams on certain main thor-oughfares of the city, is a move in the right direction; but it might properly be amended in some particulars. In-stead of forbidding the tying of teams on the streets named, it might be well to prohibit their standing on those streets for a greater length of time say, than for half an hour at one place. An ordinance merely prohibiting the tying of teams along the main streets would not reach all offenders. No team should be allowed to stand on the main streets more than half an hour. at the most, if indeed so long a time may properly be permitted. The streets are for traffic, and it is an abuse to convert them into livery and feed "Move on."

The recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States sustains the interstate commerce law in its most rigid provisions, and makes it possible to subject the railroads of the country to absolute government control. 'Tis a consummation devoutly to be wished.

carrying the first key of the new rooms of the Jonathan Club.

About one hundred and twenty members of the club lunched in the tiful new quarters yesterday. When luncheon was over, the men were invited to step out into the diningroom lobby, to help auction off the first key.

Ex-Mayor T. E. Rowan was auctioneer and the bidding ran fast and furious. The first and lowest offer was $5, and it went jumping briskly up until $75 was reached. Then it began until $75 was reached. Then it began to flag a little. Someone would raise the price $5 and instantly Mr. Rule would raise it $5 more. Then a pause, another bid, and $5 more from Mr. Rule. At last Mr. Rule offered $95. Everybody said "surely he would give $100," but everybody was afraid to tempt fate. At last C. D. Howry made the plunge and boldly shouted, "ninety-seven fifty!" Then Mr. Rule yelled, "one hundred!" the hammer fell and he was the possessor of the coveted

key.

This first of all the keys will be of gold, beautifully made and embellished. Mr. Rule will not enjoy its possersion for some weeks, for it has not yet been made.

Large Crowd Attends the Exan ination in Bow-street Police Court-The Filibusters Loudly

LONDON, March 10.—(By Atlantic Cable.) There was a large crowd about the Bow-street Police Court today, the occasion being the formal arraignment of Dr. Leander L. Jameson, Maj. John Willoughby, Hon. Charles John Coventry, Col. White, Col. P. Grey, Maj. P. willoughby, Hon. Charles John Coven-try, Col. White, Col. R. Grey, Maj. R. White, Maj. J. B. Stracey, Maj. C. H. Villiers, Capt. K. C. Kincaid Smith, Capt. C. L. Monroe, Capt. C. H. Foley, Capt. E. S. C. Holden, Capt. C. F. Lind-sell and Lieut. H. M. Grenfel, charged with yielding. The foreign application. sell and Lieut. H. M. Grenfel, charged with violating the foreign enlistment act, passed in 1870, "to regulate the conduct of Her Majesty's subjects during the existence of hostilities between foreign states with which Her Majesty is t peace."
The Transvaal filibusters were loudly

at peace."

The Transvaal filibusters were loudly cheered whenever recognized, and there was hearty applause for "Joe" Chamberlain. Newspaper representatives were present by the score from many parts of the world. In the audience were the Duke of Abercorn, chairman of the British Chartered South African Company, Earl and Lady Coventry and other people equal in importance. Had it not been for the stern demeanor of the Chief Justice, a popular demonstration would have occurred at the opening of the court. The array of counsel on both sides is formidable. Sir John Bridge, the chief magistrate, presided. Sir Richard Webster opened for the crown. He dwelt in forcible language upon the gravity of the charge against the prisoners, contending that the South African republic was a friendly state within the meaning of the foreign enlistment act, and holding that Bechuanaland, whence most of Jameson's troops came, was undoubtedly a part of the British dominions. Sir Richard reviewed the circumstances of the notonious raid, and mentioned a speech which Col. R. Grey made to the Bechuanaland police at Mafeking, in which he said: "I cannot tell you we are going by the Queen's orders but we are going to fight for the supremacy of the British flag in South Africa."

The address of Sir Richard Webster was listened to with great interest. As he proceeded the prisoners began to look nervous and worried. Evidently they had not realized the gravity of their situation. The first witness called was Sergt. Hay of Bechuanaland, a typical trooper.

Hay testified to the mustering in, of troops at Mafeking on the sterior of the charge and the the-trooper.

Hay testified to the mustering in o Hay testified to the mustering in, of troops at Mafeking, and to the endeavors of Jameson and Col. Grey to induce him and a few comrades to join a body of men being equipped for a march toward Johannesburg. Sergt. Hay said that Jamesom and Grey expressed annoyance at the fact that some troopers hesitated and others refused to join in the expedition. After the formal evidence had been submitted, the examination was adjourned for a week.

Corporal Smith of the Bechuanaland police testified that Dr. Jameson made a speech to the troops at Pitsanipilogo on December 29, and read them a letter signed by Messrs. Hammond, Farrar, Phillipps and Leonard of Johannesburg Reform Committee, requesting assistance upon behalf of the people of Johannesburg, who, it was claimed, were in danger from the threatening attitude of the Boers.

According to Corporal Smith, Dr. Jameson told the troops that he did not believe a shot would be fired. Later ammunition and rations were served out and the troopers started on the march across the frontier of the Transvaal.

Arranging to Resume Business. SAN JOSE, March 10.—At a meeting of the directors of the Commercial and Savings Bank this afteruon, eight of the nine directors were present. It was the unanimous expression that the capital stock be increased by $200,000 and that the bank resume business.

American Revolution, says an exchange, and her heart glowed with patriotism as she beheld the American flags, shields, coats-of-arm and streamers with which the room was decorated. The speeches added to her exaltation, and she felt the blood of fighting sires running-like fire through her velns.

The woman in the stunning chinchilla cape and blue velvet gown, who really didn't "look as though she had ever had any ancestors," had discovered a friend in the dowdy woman in gray, and the outsider heard her say: "Oh, yes, I belong. My children can trace their ancestry back through five lines to the Norman conquest."

cestry back through five lines to the Norman conquest."

A little gasp from the recipient of this information broke the awestruck pause, and then, regaining her breath, the dowdy woman, with her nose tiptilted, said; "They are fortunate, indeed. We are proud of our two lineal tracings of the days of King Arthur, but only claim our ancestry back to the revolution, since we live in a republican country."

The spirit of envy devoured the woman who was not a "Daughter." The very next day she put into effect her resolution to find out the names of her revolutionary ancestors, for she was assured she must have had them. For three days she searched records, and the fourth day she searched again, and "yan them to earth." "James Brown, who married Maria, daughter of Jonas and Ellen Smith," dated back to 1768 for the time of his marriage, and she sighed a great sigh of relief. Butalas for ambition—he fought on the Tory side!

Paper Boxes for Coffins.

Paper Boxes for Coffins.

The practice has been growing for some time among east-side undertakers of burying the bodies of small infants in filmsy paper boxes, says the New York World. It is common for the parents of the dead to be charged for an expensive casket which, after the funeral service, is changed by the undertakers for a paper box. The casket is set aside and-used over and over again for this grewsome purpose.

The men who profit by this practice take advantage of the grief of their customers and trade upon it. The law does not fix any penalty for the act. Certain undertakers are anxious to keep the practice a secret. The disclosure has been made by Walter Healey, who drove the hearse for one of these undertakers. The funerals of the poor are carried out in the simplest possible manner. The homes of these bereaved families are usually in the tenement houses on the east side, and often sconsist of only a single room. This condition gives the undertaker just the opportunity he wants. It is impossible to keep the little bodies in the home until the time of the funeral.

It is common, therefore, to remove the dead body to the funerale east stab.

the funeral.

It is common, therefore, to remove the dead body to the undertaker's establishment, where the remains are prepared for burial. The little body remains at the undertaker's until the hour of the funeral, when it is carried to its parents' home. The coffin is left there for a few hours, and after the services it is again removed to the undertaker's.

The coffin in which the little one is brought to its parents is generally made in initiation of expensive woods, and the interior is fitted with cheap satin.

The people look with pride upon this remove the coffin directly to the undertaker's shop. The parents seldom accompany it to the grave. It is comparatively easy, therefore, for the undertaker to change the coffin, and so carries on this fraud in security. The pasteboard boxes used for the purpose are of the kind found in dry goods stores. The undertaker does not take the trouble even to get them alike, but uses any box of a suitable size he makes any box of a suitable size he makes any box of a suitable size he makes any box of the lid is fitted on, and the whole is ready for burial. These are then thrown into wagons, and carried off to the cemetery.

is ready for burial. These are then thrown into wagons, and carried off to the cemetery.

The authorities of the large cemeteries would not, of course, allow anybody to be buried in such a manner. The rules of all the cemeteries provide that everybody must be buried in a decent manner. The coffin must be of the rudest boards.

The undertakers understand all this well enough, and are cunning enough to evade the law. This has been done over and over again by bribing the grave-digger, or the care-taker of the cemetery, who, happens to be about at the time of the funeral, and is therefore, a witness to the outrage. In some cases, a regular agreement has been made with such men which has extended over several months. Several agreements have been made by which a fixed price was baid for each child. The bribe, or hush money, as might be expected, is generally rather small. It has sometimes happened that less than 50 cents has been paid the caretaker for hush money.

It is often necessary to distribute more than a bribe or two to insure secresy. The man who drives the rough wagon in which these little corpses are carried to their last resting-place, and who, for the sake of custom, is called the undertaker, considers this merely a trick of the trade. The man who was formerly employed by one of these undertakers, says he believes that hundreds of such outrages were perpetrated during the last year.

Susan B. Anthony's lieutenant, on her present trip to Southern California, is Miss Emma B. Sweet of Rochester, N. Miss Emma B. Sweet of Rochester, N. Y. Already the irreverent paragrapher suggests the name of "Sweet Emma" for this talented lleutenant. She is really a charming woman, and as she is a "B" Sweet, another irreverent thinks that Emma is sweeter than the honey dew. At all events, Susan and are welcome to this sunny clime most heartly.

No longer is the "City of Angels" to be scoffed at as a "jay" town. The Council, unless all signs fail, is going to pass an ordinance making it a mis-demeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, for the granger, and other people as well, to tie a horse, mule or beast of burden on certain streets in limits prescribed by the ordinance. Those folks who have long used the busy highways of Los Angeles as a temporary stable for their steeds, will be inclined to grovel at this ordinance, but the rest of the populace will wel-come such a clearing of the streets as the new law will produce. It may be discovered that the use of a twentypound hitching weight may evade the penalty for "tying."

The question of decorating the streets, which is now being considered by a special committee of the Flesta Association, has brought very plainly before the minds of the members the disadvantages that attach to the present system of stringing wires thickly over the streets. For one thing, it has made it almost impossible to erect arches, which have been a pleasing feature of the decorations in other cities. If this were the only drawback it would not matter much, but these wires are not only permanently disfiguring to the streets; they are a source of great danger in case of fire. It is to be hoped that the time is not far distant when wires of every description

Much "guff" is being indulged in by some who urge the appointment of fruit inspectors in Los Angeles, and advo-cate the giving to the Health Officer and his deputies the authority of such an appointment. It is a preposterou idea, that with frozen oranges and sucl "truck" on sale in the markets of the city, the Health Officer must needs wait for authority from the Council to con-fiscate the fruit and punish the man who sells it. If a systematic and thorough inspection of all the produce brought into the city was contemplated, the appointment urged would be proper, but for the custodian of the city's health to wait for such appointment be-fore doing his evident duty would be carelessness with a large C.

Lack of numbers may not be proof of lack of merit, but it indicated that, and a barrelful of other things yesterday, loudly-vaunted meeting of the "Bi-metallic party," when "strong reso-lutions" were to be adopted and "national movement inaugurated." rest of the pompous programme carried out, not one of the 100,000 men, wome out, not one or the 100,000 men, women and children of Los Angeles city cared to go near the affair, which, from lack of interest in it, simply did not mate-rialize. Uncharitable folks will perhaps remark that interest in the "Bimetallicoomers" is not at flood tide, which while true, is stating the case with too much moderation. The great plain people simply do not give a tinker's expletive for what the "boomers" may think, say, do, promise or perform.

A DETECTIVE'S TALK

William A. Pinkerton is in Los Angeles.

Why Jewelers Are So Seldom Robbed.

Celebrated Crook Who Worked a San Francisco Bank-Final Punishment is Almost Inevitable. The Los Angeles Police.

William A. Pinkerton, one of the most celebrated of living detectives, is spending a few days in Los Angeles. He arrived at the Westminster Hotel yesterday morning and spent the afternoon calling on friends and wandering about the city.

It was half a century ago that Allan Pinkerton, a keen Scotch detective, organized an American detective agency. From a small beginning the enterprise grew and developed amazingly. When Allan Pinkerton died, in 1834, he left the business to his sous, William and Robert Pinkerton. The sons inherited the father's skill, and the agency has grown under their care until it employs a thousand detectives, covering the United States from end to end. Besides this force of detectives, the firm employs thousands of patrolmen, having agencies for supplying night watchmen, etc., in big cities like Chicago and Denver.

employs thousands of patrolmen, having agencies for supplying night watchmen, etc., in big cities like Chicago and Denver.

Mr. Pinkerton had just finished writing a telegram last evening when a times reporter accosted him in the lobby of the Westminster Hotel. He led the way to a seat and then fell to chatting pleasantly about his work.

"The chief errand which brought me to California," he said, "was to see about the establishment of a branch of the Pinkerton Detective Agency in San-Francisco. There is an organization known as the Jewelers' Security Alliance, whose chief object is to protect jewelers from having their safes robbed, and helping to catch the thief and recover the stolen goods in case a robbery occurs. Another organization of jewelers, the Jewelers' Protective Association, is designed to protect iraveling salesmen from robbery. Working together thus, if one jeweler is robbed, all the principal jewelers of the country lend their united aid to catch the thief and recover the plunder.

"For a number of years we have been employed by these associations to do all their detective work. In the seventeen years we have been employed in this capacity, in not a single instance have we failed to bring the criminals to justice, and but once to recover the property. It has become so widely known in criminal circles that to rob a jeweler means inevitable detection, that crooks seldom dare to attempt such a thing. It has been four years since a jeweler means inevitable detection, that crooks seldom dare to attempt such a thing. It has been four years since a jeweler means inevitable detection, that crooks seldom dare to attempt such a thing. It has been four years since a jeweler means inevitable detection, that crooks seldom dare to attempt such a thing. It has been four of the word of the kind that has occurred for three years.

"Another department of our Denver agency, giving him instructions as to the handling of a diamond, valued at 45000, from a showcase, and made his escape. That is the first robbery of nis escape. That is the first robbery of the kind that has occurred for three years.

"Another department of our business is our work for the protective branch of the American Bankers' Association. Over 2700 banks have banded together to protect themselves against forgers and bank-robbers. We have been employed to do their detective work. We have prepared a bulky volume containing pictures, "descriptions and brief histories of all the noted crooks of America and accounts of their methods of work. We keep adding to this valuable fund of information. Every time a new crook is captured we send a description to the banks which are members of the association. Every time we discover a new and unique way in which banks are being defrauded, we at once warn the association.

"This promises to wipe out the trade of safe-cracking and check-raising as effectually as our work for the jewelers stopped the diamond-robbertes.

"The case of the forger Dean is a good example of the way the work is done,
"Several months ago a man appeared in San Francisco who gave the name of A. H. Dean. He represented himself as a wealthy grain merchant. He opened an account with the Newada Bank of San Francisco by depositing $4000 or $5000, and from day to day drew checks or deposited more money. At last, on December 13, he presented a draft for $22,000 drawn by the Woolworth Bank of San Francisco. He asked for $20,000 of the money. It was promptly paid and Dean fled from San Francisco. It asked for $20,000 of the money. It was promptly paid and Dean fled from San Francisco. It szz.000 drawn by the Woodlands Bank upon the Crocker & Woodworth Bank of San Francisco. He asked for $20,000 of the money. It was promptly paid and Dean fied from San Francisco. It was soon discovered that Dean had changed the draft from $12 to $22,000.

"Capt. Lees, head of the San Francisco detective force, made an exhaustive search and found the room which Dean had made his headquarters. From descriptions furnished by several persons, Capt. Lees with great skill made a composite description which he sent out over the country.

"Two weeks ago Robert Pinkerton received word from the head man of the Minneapolis agency that a man representing himself as a lumberman, was doing business with the Union Bank, and another bank of Minneapolis, of whom the bank officials felt suspicious. Our Minneapolis detectives kept close track of the fellow. With a confederate, he bought drafts for small sums at Duluth and other places, intending to raise them to larger sums by forgery. The detectives captured the pair just as they were about to swindle the two Minneapolis banks out of large sums. The first gave his name as J. M. Shaw. He was identified by our album of crooks as Joe McCloskey, who is generally known as "the King of the Thieves," an all-round crook who has served terms in several penitentiaries—five years in Ohlo, ten years in Sing Sing and ten years in Maryland. The other called himself H. M. Woods. He was identified as Frank L. Seaver, a rascal who had served a term in Illinois for counterfeiting, a term in Maryland for forgery and a term in Sing Sing for counterfeiting, a term in Maryland penitentiary he made the acquaintance of his confederate. Seaver was further identified as A. H. Dean, the man who had worked the Nevada Bank of San Francisco grand fury to issue an indictment against Dean. The rascal is now on his way to San Francisco and will arrive Thursday.

"This shows how certain and inevitable a fate now wasts a forger or safecracker.

"Under our contracts with the bankers and the jewelers it is necessary

"Under our contracts with the bank-ers and the jewelers it is necessary for is to cover the whole country. We have had an agency in Portland for some time and now I have just started

Justice Owens gave was a finety-days term for John Curley, the East Side boy who stole some saws. Ralph Felix, a young man who had a fight with a prostitute, had his trial set for Thursday afternoon.

B. E. Goodwin's case went over until Monday, when it will be set for trial. Goodwin is the fellow who battered up the "Spanish beauty." J. J. Marco's case for selling liquor without a hiense was set for 2 o'cleck this afternom.

Bug Holliday, the tough who threw a woman out of a carriage Monday night, and then jumped out and pounded her, was not in court yesterday. Since the woman would not swear to a complaint, the only charge placed against him is that of being drunk. He will be sentenced today. There were two other drunks, seven vags and one young man who rode his blcycle on the sidewalk. F. B. Taylor, arrested for petty larceny on February 12, had a jury trial and was discharged from custody. Judge Owens took under advisement the disturbance of the peace case against A. B. McCane.

In Justice Morrison's court there was little done besides small civil cases. H. H. Cross's case for violation of the liquor-license ordinance was set for March 23. G. C. Compton's examination for felony was set for March 17. Bestilo Malden will be tried for fast driving on March 14.

and private residences getting their 'phones for $2.50.

Dr. Potts, the builder of the Vendome Hotel in San José, is at the head of the scheme and the company is made up of men well known in Los Angeles. The money is all ready, and as soon as sufficient contracts are secured, a franchise will be applied for, the company agreeing to commence work within ninety days from the granting of the franchise. Underground wires will be laid in all the main parts of the city. The city will be offered eighty telephones for use in its departments, and the fire department will be allowed free use of the conduits. The object of the company is to take in all of Southern California and finally establish long-distance service between this city and San Francisco.

The Newsboys' Benefit.

Not to have read the captivatingly humorous outpourings of that prince of humorists, Bob Burdette, in the Burlington Hawkeye and other newspapers of this country, is to have missed some of the very brightest things in all the domain of American humor. Burdette is said to be just as clever before an audience as he is with a trusty pencil well in hand, and when he talls for the newsboys at Music Hall Thursdaynight there will be fun galore. The sale of seats for Bob's lecture is now going on and indications point to a smashing big house; but whether people can attend or not, they should lay in a few tickets for the good cause of buying a home for the merchants of news who are both houseless and homeless. Tickets may be had at Gardner & Oliver's bookstore, corner Spring and Third streets.

Mr. Porter was dining at the Arcade depot when a Times reporter accested him with the request for news from Ohio, especially as to the political situ-ation in general, and the situation re-garding Gov. McKinley's chances for the Republican nomination at St. Louis, in particular.

Mr. Porter, like all other men from Ohio, as well as those from other Republican sections of the country, is enthusiastically in favor of the nomination of the great apostle of protection, and he declared that it looks at present as though the Governor would be ent as though the Governor would be nominated without the least difficulty

He stated that wherever he had talked with men in his tour across the continent there was an overwheelming sentiment for the man from Ohio. "There are woods full of favorite sons," as Mr. Porter expressed it, "but if one may judge at all from seeing men and getting their views, Gov. THE ROENTGEN RAYS.

Large Audience Interested In Their Elucidation.

Their Elucidation.

The Roentgen X rays must have excited a widespread interest in this community if we may judge by the extraordinary attendance at the meeting of the Southern California Science Association last evening. Every chair in the hall was occupied and many were standing. Introducing the subject of the evening, President Knight remarked that the announcement of no other discovery had produced such instantaneous, intense and universal interest as the mysterious agency called the X ray. It was alike of interest to scientific bodies and to intelligent readers everywhere. The paper which Prof. Roentgen of the Royal University of Wurzburg had read to the Physic-Medic Society of Wurzburg last December had been translated and would be presented this evening by S. G. Marshutz, a member of the association, and illustrated by an exhibition of Crooke's vacuum tubes, showing the beautiful Cathode ray, whence the invisible X rays proceeded.

Mr. Marshutz then read his paper, after ing the beautiful Cathode ray, whence the invisible X rays proceeded.

Mr. Marshutz then read his paper, after which Mr. Lundburg made some brilliant experiments. The subject was then discussed at great length by Prof. Shultz, Prof. Nevins, Mr. Spalding, Prof. Gilmore and others. Prof. Shultz suggested the name of skiograph. He did not like Edison's processed shadowgraph. did not like Edison's proposed shadowgraph as that is a morigrel compound of Greek and English. Mr. Marshutz said that scientists had agreed to call the rays after the discov-erer, and they would henceforth by known as coentgen rays.

Mr. Nevins spoke of the fact that persons suffering from lightning-stroke sometimes have branches of trees or some adjacent op-ject imprinted on their skin, and asked it it was not perhaps a manifestation of the mys-terious ray. No one could answer. Mr. Marshutz exhibited some beautiful specimens of the work performed by these rays, imported from one of the laboratories of Europe.

Mr. Nevins offered a resolution ame the constitution so as to change the name from Southern California Science Association

Unner the rule at the meeting.

Mr. Marshutz moved that a committee be appointed to take into consideration the establishment of a laboratory in connection with the work of the association.

Maple Avenue Sewer Assessment Up

Yesterday morning at 10 o'clock the Council met in special session to con-sider the protest of property-owners against the Maple-avenue sewer dis-

There was a goodly delegation of property-owners present, in the lobby of the Council chamber, waiting their opportunity to address the Council upon the subject to the council of the cou and pocketbooks-but their hopes wer and pocketbooks—but their hopes were doomed to disappointment. The case is an old one, and the ground upon which the protests are made have been explained many times in the past to the City Council, so that every member of that body is well informed as to the situation on Maple avenue.

Consequently, when the first man with an objection to the present sewer assessment took his stand and struck an attitude preparatory to a speech, President Teed leaned over the dals and inquired "if the gentleman had not been heard in the same matter before?" The gentleman had. "And do you wish to go over the same ground at this The gentleman had. "And do you wish to go over the same ground at this time?" inquired the president. "Yessir," returned the protestant, whereupon President Teed made a ruling, in which he was upheld by the Council, that no person who had been previously heard in the case should be allowed to again address the Council on the same matter.

in the case should be allowed to again address the Council on the same matter.

At this rate the Council was not long in deciding the matter, which has been on the board for settlement for months. Councilman Kangery moved that all appeals and protests be denied and the present assessment confirmed.

Then up rose Councilman Pessell, who played such a prominent part in the late water-rate-reduction flasco, and who clamored for a "55 per cent. cut, for the sake of our constituents." Those "constituents" were on Pessell's mind yesterday, and with the idea of tickling them mightily, the Councilman from the Sixth Ward moved to amend the motion to deny all appeals, by appropriating $10,000—one-fifth of the total cost of the sewer—from some fund of the city, this money to be prorated among the property owners on Maple avenue. The audacity of the motion almost dazed Pessell's colleagues, but when they got their breath that motion was buried so deep that it will never again see daylight. The original motion to deny all appeals was adopted by the Council and the present assessment was confirmed.

It will be remembered that several It will be remembered that several weeks ago The Times exposed the violation of an ordinance which prohibits the stringing of banners across the streets. Real estate agents, plumbers' unions and other people had worked the Council for permission to hang banners across Spring street, in direct violation of the ordinance, and it was shown by The Times that the law was being broken by the very people who were responsible for its creation—the City Councilmen.

being broken by the very pepte who were responsible for its creation—the City Councilmen.

When the petition of the music people came up yesterday, Councilman Stockwell moved that it be denied. President Teed supported the motion, saying that his previous action in cases of this sort had been due to ignorance of the ordinance's existence. He proposed to acknowledge his mistakes when they were proved to him.

The Council seemed to be unanimous on the proposition, but Councilman Munson surprised his fellow officials by advocating the violation of the ordinance, saying that, as other people had been given permission to use the streets for advertising purposes, these petitioners should have the same privilege. He was alone in his stand, however, the Council denying the petition, and refusing to either amend or repeal the ordinance, though Councilman Munson moved without avail that such action be taken.

interesting Day in the Trial of Frank Lowery.

Full and somewhat sensational particulars concerning the alleged em-Lowery came out in the evidence at the trial yesterday, for T. H. Ward was examined and then severely cross-ex-amined with an evident intent to im-plicate him in the transaction for which plicate him in the transaction for which Mr. Lowery was indicted, and Mr. Lowery himself took the stand as the principal witness in his own behalf, and told his story of how the shortage came about and why Ward claims that he knew nothing of the shortage until Lowery was indicted, and Lowery swears that it was solely by Mr. Ward's directions, and with his authority, that the refunding of the entries in the fee-book.

Mr. Ward resumed the stand at the opening of the morning session, and after a preliminary wrangle among the lawyers regarding the further introduction of items from the fee-book.

Mr. McComas began to read the different expense accounts, and to show the items to Mr. Ward for the purpose of identifying the hand-writing. It was the merest routine technicality, the items to Mr. Ward for the purpose of identifying the hand-writing. It was the merest routine technicality, but such is the interest excited by the case that the county officers who were present as spectators listened with unabated interest even to these dry and monotonous details. The taking of evidence at this stage resembled the examination of a primer class, and Mr. Ward had an easy time as a witness, Mr. Meserve, put on the drags at every available point, and insisted upon his objection to this class of evidence, upon the ground that Mr. Ward knew nothing about either the entries in the fee-book or the receipts, of his own knowledge, or in any way except from the evidence of the fee-book itself. The objections were steadily overruled by Judge Smith, and the record bristled with exceptions taken by the defense.

MEANING OF "REFUND."

Every effort to stem the tide was vain. Mr. McComas read on steadily and monotonously, wading through expense accounts, warrants and receipts as though they were the several vertebrae in the backbone of the case, while the jury looked a trifle bored. At the close of the string of items Mr. Ward was asked the meaning of the word "refund," as used in this connection, and explained that all the items on the fee-book represent the money taken into the clerk's office as fees. Those in the "refund column" represent the money paid out of these fees for current expenses, such as envelopes, stamps, blanks, and other minor expenses which require cash. The money was taken out of the cash drawer, and the entry was made in the fee-book to enable the clerk to make a correct claim against the county, when it was paid out of the treasury upon a warrant from the Board of Supervisors and restored to the clerk's office. MEANING OF "REFUND."

returned to the county prior to the bringing of the endictment against Lowery, but Mr. Meserve succeeded in maintaining his objection to this question as being out of order, and then proceeded to cross-examine Mr. Ward upon the points already introduced. Mr. Ward admitted that the word "refund," as commonly used in this connection, meant all money paid out of the office for current expenses, and that all the deputies had the right to pay demands against the office from the cash-drawer. Money was thus paid out regularly by Mr. Ward himself, and by Mr. Seaver, Mr. Johnson and all the other deputies as well as Mr. Lowery.

self, and by Mr. Seaver, Mr. Johnson and all the other deputies as well as Mr. Lowery.

Another point dwelt upon by the defense was the fact that the person paying out or receiving the money did not always make the entry upon the feebook. In the clerk's office, one deputy often calls to another to enter an item for him, mergly for the sake of convenience, and an item entered in the shandwriting of any particular deputy does not necessarily signify that he has actually handled the money.

Under the questioning of Mr. Meserve, Mr. Ward testified that all the money received in the clerk's office was deposited in the cash-drawer or in the safe, and might be paid out by himself or any deputy, either from this cash fund or by a check upon the deposit of the clerk's office in the bank, thus removing the responsibility from any one deputy.

VERBAL AUTHORITY.

removing the responsibility from any one deputy.

VERBAL AUTHORITY.

It also appeared that, in certain instances, the clerk had received verbal authority from the Supervisors to pay claims against the office for some specified expenses, without a written warrant. This species of "juggling with the law," as Mr. Meserve termed it, was done by mutual understanding, simply to save time and trouble, and was a regular custom of the office.

Mr. McComas picked up the question on re-direct examination, and established the fact that all money, however expended, must be returned to the fee fund, and an entry made in the fee-book, although, in answer to a question from Mr. Meserve, Mr. Ward admitted that money might have been refunded without an entry having been made in the fee-book.

Mr. Ward was then released, and C. W. Bell was called to the stand. Mr. Bell is a Deputy County Clerk, having the position of acting clerk of the Board of Supervisors, which position he held during Mr. Ward's administration. He testified to the identity of the claims presented by Mr. Lowery, and to the fact of their having been allowed by the Board of Supervisors.

County Auditor Bicknell was then sworn, and produced his recorded warrant drawn for $559.75 in favor of Mr. Lowery. Mr. Meserve here interposed an objection that this portion of the record was made before Mr. Bicknell's term of office, and that it was not enough of a public record to make it admissible in evidence, but the objection was overruled, and the entry was examined by counsel. Mr. Bicknell admissible in evidence, but the objection was overruled, and the entry was examined by counsel. Mr. Bicknell admitted that he knew nothing whatever of the entries in the record to be admitted that he knew nothing whatever of the entries in the record to be admitted, the steady flow of objections and exceptions on the part of the defense other dammed only by the inexorable "overruled" from the bench. Mr. Ward.

Other entries were read and admitted, the steady flow of objections and exceptions on the part of the defense being dammed only by the inexorable "overruled" from the bench. Mr. Ward was recalled for a moment, and identified the signatures to the entries in the auditor's receipt book as being in the handwriting of F. E. Lowery. On cross-examination, Mr. Meserve elicited only the facts that the entries were made with Mr. Ward's permission and by his authority, and that, in oling so, Mr. Lowery had violated no rule of the office.

A recess was then taken until 2 p.m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

AFTERNOON SESSION. AFTERNOON SESSION.

The court convened again at 2 o'clock, with a still larger audience of men interested in the case. Mrs. Lowery occupied a chair beside her husband, and a pretty, curly-headed baby girl sat upon his knee, watching the proceedings with wondering eyes, but keeping very quiet and good through the tedious hours.

County Treasurer Florian many largest and the county the second second

County Treasurer Fleming was called, and testified that the warrants had passed through his office and had been paid by his deputies, which one, he could not tell. The question of personal knowledge was again raised by Mr.

signed the receipt.

A. E. Mason, Deputy County Treasurer, then took the stand, and testified to having paid the warrants presented to having paid the warrants presented by Mr. Lowery.

Mr. Ward was recalled and testified that the shortage was not paid back into the fee fund until after the indictment of Mr. Lowery by the grand jury, and that his first knowledge of the alleged defalcation was at the time it was brought to his attention by the finding of the indictment. Mr. Ward testified to having had a conversation with the defendant, in which he admitted that the money was short, and said he thought it was known by his chief.

Upon cross-examination, Mr. Meserve asked some searching questions concerning a conversation which the witness was said to have held with Mr. Lowery in the presence of A. W. Seaver, and the atmosphere of the court became so highly electrical that every one waited breathlessly for what would happen next.

When asked if every dollar of the money drawn upon the three warrants was not either used in the business of the office or turned over to his successor, Mr. Ward replied that he thought it was not, and admitted that he believed it was never turned into the safe by Mr. Lowery, one in the Supreme Court, in the presence of A. W. Seaver, and the other with Mr. Lowery alone at the First National Bank, but denied having directed Mr. Lowery to omit the entries in the fee book at the time the misappropriations occurréd, averring that he had told Lowery, when he met him at the bank, that he had had no idea that the entries had not been made as usual in the fee book.

MR. WARD DID NOT KNOW.

MR. WARD DID NOT KNOW. By way of foundation for future tes timony, Mr. Meserve asked the witness if he had ever said that he knew all about the shortage, but did not know that the amount was so large, and Mr. Ward denied ever having made such a speech

Ward denied ever having made such a speech.

He then testified that Mr. Lowery had made the settlement with Mr. Newlin at the change of the administration, but he could not tell the exact amount, except that it approximated $4000. When asked by Mr. Meserve if he did not know that Mr. Lowery had paid out nearly $5000 in the regular course of the business of the office, other than the money turned over to Mr. Newlin, Mr. Ward admitted that he might have done so, but could not specify any large amount so paid out.

The witness further stated that he knew nothing of the cash in the office, except from the entries on the fee book, and made the important admission that a shortage occurring in some previous administration of a larger sum than the one now in question, was handed down to Mr. Lowery with the cash and the books when he took office.

Upon redirect examination, Maj. Donnell requested Mr. Ward to tell the jury all about this prior shortage, and he stated that it amounted to $8000, and was attributed to F. B. Fanning. Mr. Ward said that he had paid all but $600 of this debt himself, Mr. Lowery bearing no part of this burden nor being called upon to do so.

Maj. Donnell endeavored to show that the $1354 in question in this case was no part of this original shortage of $8000, but an entirely separate and distinct matter for which Lowery alone was responsible. Reverting to Mr. Ward's conversation with Mr. Lowery, after the commencement of the investigation by the grand jury, Maj. Donnell asked for all the witness could remember concerning ft, and was told that upon this occasion, Mr. Lowery had said he thought Mr. Ward knew all about the shortage, but was told that he did not. Lowery then said he would try to get money from the East to make it good, but had not succeeded. The witness had never asked him why he did not pay the sum, but had himself paid it into the treasury, thus making good the loss to the county.

MADE A DRAMATIC SCENE.

MADE A DRAMATIC SCENE. Upon cross-examination, Mr. Meserve Upon cross-examination, Mr. Meserve sprung the sudden question: "How much money belonging to the county did you appropriate for your own individual use before the death of Fanning?" The District Attorney objected, but Mr. Meserve sprang to his feet, and somewhat dramatically announced that he proposed to show that Mr. Ward had himself made use of the shortage of $8000 attributed to Fanning, and could produce in court the men to whom the checks had been made payable. He averred that the two shortages had not been kept separate and distinct, and that the defense could prove that Ward and not Lowery was the party really responsible for the defalcations. The question had been opened up by the prosecution, said Mr. Meserve, and the defense was now entitled to show that the shortage did not come through Fanning, as: usually supposed, but through Ward himself, and was handed down to Lowery when he took the books. Turning then to the witness he asked him if he had not put $7900 of this money to his own individual use before Lowery took the books, but the vigorous objection of the District Attorney to this line of examination was sustained by the court, and, after a few more questions, Mr. Ward was again released from the stand, with the understanding that he might at any moment be recalled to give additional testimony.

Clarence H. Lee, a grand jury expert, was then called, and testified to having examined the records in the office of the County Clerk in 1884-85, and to having been unable to find that any part of the money drawn on the warrants in question had been paid into the fee fund or into the County Treasury. Mr. Lee made this examination in October or November in 1895, and so far as his search could show, these sums were never entered upon the fee-book.

The next witness was F. C. Woodbury, deputy clerk of the Supreme sprung the sudden question: "How these sums were never entered upon the fee-book.

The next witness was F. C. Woodbury, deputy clerk of the Supreme Court. He was asked by Maj. Donnell if he had ever been present at a conversation between Mr. Ward and Mr. Lowery about the shortage, and replied that he had not, but admitted that Mr. Lowery had come to his office and told him that he was short in his accounts and expected to be indicted by the grand jury. The defendant had said that the amount of the shortage was between $1300 and $1400, and that he had used the money, but hoped to replace it with the assistance of a friend in the east. Mr. Woodbury testified that he was shocked at the news, which was the first intimation he had had of any shortage in Mr. Lowery's account, and that he had hardly known how to advise him in the matter. The evidence of Mr. Woodbury was given with evident reluctance, and pain at the fact that it was undoubtedly the most damaging of all presented by the prosecution, but it was in no degree shaken by the severe cross-examination to which he was subjected.

THE DEFENSE BEGINS.

THE DEFENSE BEGINS. With the testimony of Mr. Woodbury, the plaintiff rested and Mr. Lower the plaintiff rested and Mr. Lowery and his attorneys retired to consult upon the best line of defense to be adopted, and the order in which it should be put on. When they returned, as the first witness for the defense. A. W. Seaver was called to the stand. Mr. Seaver was a Deputy County Clerk under Mr. Ward, and, until recently, under Mr. Newlin, and testified to having been present at a contribution. cently. under Mr. Newlin, and testified to having been present at a conversation between Mr. Ward and Mr. Lowery, in which the question of this proposed shortage was discussed. The witness could not remember this conversation in detail, as it lasted fully half an hour, but he did clearly recollect that Mr. Ward told Lowery that he remembered the discrepancy between the cash and the entries on the fee-book, but had not thought it was so much. Mr. Seaver said he had never heard the matter discussed before this conversation, which took place in the clerk's office of the Supreme Court, and, of his own personal knowledge, knew nothing whatever about it.

LOWERY TALKS. LOWERY TALKS.

A ripple of excitement went through the courtroom as the defendant himself A rippie of excitement went through the courtroom as the defendant himself was called, and composedly took his place upon the stand. Mr. Lowery, when asked for his official record, said he had been deputy at different times to the County Recorder and Assessor, and had served as deputy County Clerk in Los Angeles county for seven successive years, beginning as copyist and being steadily promoted until, in 1891, he attained the position of chief deputy, which he held until the close of Mr. Ward's administration, in Janu'ary, 1895.

The witness had been in charge of the cash in the office from June, 1894, the amount passing through his hands averaging $2700 a month. The cash drawer was open at all times to the other deputies and to Mr. Ward himself, any one of them receiving or paying out money whenever it was necessary.

RECALLED THE SHORTAGE

RECALLED THE SHORTAGE.

During the conversation in the Clerk's office at the Supreme Court, which took place in the presence of Mr. Seaver, the witness recalled this shortage to Mr. Ward's recollection and told him it was the same money which he had been directed to put on the fee book, whereupon Mr. Ward had said he did not know it was so much.

Mr. Lowery asserted very decidedly that he had never told any one that he had used this money himself, and squarely denied every particle of Mr. Woodbury's testimony concerning his alleged admission of having taken it for his own benefit. The money was used to meet demands against Mr. Ward, which could not be satisfied in any other way, as there was no cash in the office to meet them. Mr. Ward was getting ready to go to San Francisco at the end of his term when Mr. Lowery told him that the cash was in the safe, ready to be entered on the fee book. The only wrong done was the omission of the entry, and that was by Mr. Ward's express order. No one had ever accused Lowery himself of converting the money to his own use until the Indictment was found against him.

Later it appeared that the real reason for omitting the entry was because all entries on the fee book had to be accounted for to the County Treasurer each month, and Mr. Ward desired the temporary use of the $1354 in question.

At 4:45 o'clock the court adjourned, and Mr. Lowery will probably be recalled this morning.

With these gentlemen as standard-bearers in the coming national campaign, the one as candidate for the Presidency and the other for the Vice-Presidency, it is the hope of the Bi-Metallic party to unite the South and the West into an electoral college majority of from twenty-five to thirty, and advance the cause of silver independent of either the Republican or Democratic parties."

THIS WAS THE RESULT.

At 12:30 o'clock the stairs leading to the rooms on North Main street, where the "boom" of that "opening gun" was going to demolish things and clear the atmosphere for action and make the enemy wish he was "non est" and several other things, were thronged by press representatives, on the alert for notes of that "important meeting" and those "strong resolutions" and the advancement of the "cause of silver," etc., etc.

But, alsa! and again, alas! The moments passed, and lengthened into hours, but yet the minions and adherents of the Bl-Metallic evening organ came not, nor materialized even to the extent of one adherent. Dead silence reigned throughout the headquarters of the Bi-Metallic party, and the national movement that was to have started with a stirring call to Senator Morgan, to "take up the standard and march to the field of carnage" petered out before it arrived, and, in the innguage of an unknown genius, "died a bornin".

Meanwhile the cause of free silver, as represented by the "Bi-Metallics," languishes and awaits the receipt of its "innards" of something other than the "wind" of the aforesald evening organ.

Gov. Budd and party, immediately upon arriving from Whittler in this to the Courthouse, where a friendly contest between the State and county officials was in order for half an hour.

In the District Attorney's office were gathered the State Board of Supervisors, Superintendent Coffin, Mrs. Mitchell, trustee, and others. The trouble has been a matter of long standing, and arose over two interpretations of the same law. The county pays nothing for the support of criminals at the school and one-half for that of the incorrigibles. The District Attorney argues that criminals are a State charge, and, whether in San Quentin or Whittler, should be provided for by it. The Governor was expected to request Los Angeles county to put up one-half for their maintenance. The entire matter was left in the hands of the Attorney-General, who will confer with the District Attorney. A suit may be brought to secure the amount, $18,000. The Governor, seemed anxious to have, the county pay the entire amount for the support of those guilty of misdemeanor. He said that he was verymuch pleased with the school, and saw a great opportunity for its improvement. He thought a new building in which lathes could be run by the boys would be a great advantage; besides it would help toward making the institution self-supporting—a condition which cal representatives of various Indian tribes.

Subsequently he did work for Judge and Frank Leslie's. In 1890 he began the publication in New Tork of Talent, a monthly devoted to lyceum lectures, which has become probably the leading magazine of its kind. For several years past Mr. Spedron has been engaged in lecturing tours and studying his own special art. This is his first visit to California, although his father was ene of the "9ers," Mr. Spedron expresses himself enthusiastically over some of the newspaper illustrations he has seen here, saying they are generally better than in the East. "Newspaper illustration," he says, "requires the skilled and rapid artist, one who camproduce a picture without the usual recourse to models and other sketches for comparison of particular poses." He thinks there should be more attention given in art schools to practical instruction that will fit the student for newspaper illustrating, and an appreciation of lines as affected by the process of reduction required by the final print. His lecture here, poetic, humorous and pathetic, will be amply illustrated by his own skilled and rapid work.

Ventriloquism in China.

A man who witnessed the performance gives the following description of what a ventriloquist in China did:

"The ventriloquist was seated behind a screen, where there were only a chair, a table, a fan, and a ruler. With the river, he rapped on the table to enforce silence, and when everybody had ceased speaking there was suddenly heard the barking of a dog. Then we heard the movements of a woman. She had been wakened by the dog, and was shaking her husband.

"We were just expecting to hear the man and wife talking together when a child began to cry. To pacify it the mother gave it food; we could hear it drinking and crying at the same time. The mother spoke to it soothingly and then rose to change its clothes.

"Meanwhile, another child had been wakened and was beginning to make a noise. The father scolded it, while the baby continued crying. By-and-by the whole family went back to bed and fell asleep. The patter of a mouse was heard. It climbed up some vase and upset it. We heard the clatter of the vase as it fell.

The Circular Saw.

The Circular Saw.

(The Inventor.) The circular saw has come into such general use that it is accepted as one of the indispensible mechanical instruments and few ever give a thought to the inventor. In tracing the history of saws back to the origin, C. A. Dunham finds that the circular saw was invented in America about the year 1770 by a combmaker of the name of Hartshorn.

He found the old-fashioned method of using a common handsaw to saw out the horn between the teeth of the comb rather slow. He therefore took a common copper penny, known locally as a "Bungtown capper." filed it down somewhat thinner, drilled a hole through its center, squared the hole and cut the teeth in its outer edge. He then placed it upon a mandrel and put it in his lathe. On that he sawed out it is his lathe. On that he sawed out his combs.

The new saw worked so well that he out up his handsaw and converted that also into circular saws for making combs. He lived and died in Mansheld, Ct., "where the wooden nutmegs come from." He was also the inventor of the screw and lip auger. He never took out any patents, claiming that if he hid done anything that was of benefit to his fellowmen they were welcome to it.

SHE SMILED SWEETLY

On the Manly Man in the Full Vigor of His Magnetic Manhood.

No Use Now-a-Days for Puny, Debili-tated individuals—Everybody Can Be Quickly, Eastly, Perma-

Sparkling eyes, a quick-beating heart, a the rosy blush of pleasures greet the stromanly man, when he meets his lady love. The kind of man whose very touch the because it is full of energy, vigorous need to the proper and vitality. That is the kind of mint every man should be und his magmorescae would make everybody happy are him. Why is it not so? One of the princi reasons is the universally prevailing tobs habit. Tobacco kills nerve. Stay with toba long enough, and every man yill be a sell skinny, nerveless wreck, inappling disgust stead of love and affection. No man who u tobacce can be as much of a man as without. No grasy so strong as the death grip of habit, and man once fully is its citched helpless without aid. That's way every the co-user has the same good coruse, it as the same good coruse, and any one who will can guit easily, quic and permanently. Here's an lantancer

Times Educational Department:

The Encyclopedia Britannica is the substance of a great modern library, On the roll of its contributors are names held in honor wherever the English language is spoken, and, as one might have expected, it justifies on every page its claims to accuracy, theroughness and impartiality. Fifty-two text-books in our leading colleges are but repvints of articles in the Encyclopedia Britannica.

In furnishing the "Guide to Systematic Reading in the Encyclopedia Britannica" the Home University League has rendered a service of inestimable yaine to investigators in every department of life's work, beginning with the school-boy and including the college student, the post graduate, the workers in the different trades and professions throughout the world. I have owned and used the Encyclopedia Britannica for years, but the "Guide" makes it practically a new work to me.

MRS. GOODSPEED MISSED THE FRUITS OF MUCH LITIGATION.

STRIFE AND LIFE ENDED.

Career of Romance and Law—An Early Elopement, a Subsequent Marriage, a Divorce, Then Legal Difficulties—A Los Angeles Story.

(San Francisco Call, March 9:) With the audden death of Mrs. Lucy C. Good-speed of this city on Saturday evening ended a life remarkable for the long, diverse and interesting litigation with which it was associated. . The story is one threaded with ro-

Pratt spent the last nine years of her life.

Mrs. Goodspeed successfully contested her mother's will and the suit that resulted is known as the longest jury trial in Southern California. It lasted continuously from September 10, 1894, to December 1 of last year. The verdict gave to her about half the estate of about a half-million dollars and to the children of her brother, the late Charles Pratt of Fruitvale, the other half. The property consisted chiefly of the Aguas Frias rancho.

But her most remarkable legal fight was in 1893 during her mother's life.

property consisted chiefly of the Aguas Frias rancho.

But her most remarkable legal fight was in 1893, during her mother's lifetime, when she sued to declare her mother incompetent and to have a guardian appointed over her estate. During the trial the charge of embezziling over $100,000 was made against ex-Lieut-Gov. Mansfield, who up to that time had been looked upon in Los Angeles as a model of manly and social propriety. The claim was, made that the Mansfields, while keeping feeble and incompetent Mrs. Pratt in a back room at their residence, had appropriated money from her bank account and what accrued as rent from her estate. The rents from the Pratts property amounted in some years to $150,000, of which the Pratts received a third, while the farmers retained the balance. Mrs. Goodspeed was successful in sustaining her charges.

disposing of their property, which had been so largely increased by appropriation from the Pratt estate. During the suit, however, the property faded away, and the defendants were summoned to explain its whereabouts, but refused. After being ordered to jail for contempt, Gen. Mansfield made an explanation. About $10,000 or $11,000, forming the lost money he disposed of, he had drawn from the bank, converted into greenbacks and given to his wife, who dug a hole in the plaster of the pantry wall, put the money in and scaled the hole up, but afterward removed it to pay attorney's fees, amounting to $4000, and other expenses of the litigation. So Mrs. Goodspeed secured none of the misappropriated money.

When Judge Pratt died in February, 1891—February was considered a hoodooed month by Mrs. Goodspeed, as all of her nearest relatives had died in that month—he left one-fourth of his estate in trust, to be given to Mrs. Goodspeed in seven years. Only about two weeks ago Judge Gray of Butte county decided for Mrs. Goodspeed that the trust was illegal, and his decision permitted her to acquire possession immediately.

In the very week in which she died. Mrs. Goodspeed had made her final set-mitted her to acquire possession immediately.

In the very week in which she died, Mrs. Goodspeed had made her final settlement of her mother's estate and had sent to Los Angeles the final accounts as administratrix preparatory to receiving the inheritance.

In February, 1893, she brought suit in Judge Murphy's court against her husband, and was again successful as a legal contestant, being awarded alimoney, counsel fees and the charge of the younger children.

Since the divorce, however, Mr. Goodspeed has continued to be her manager, as was the father-in-law, Judge Pratt, after his divorce.

Mrs. Goodspeed, leaves five children: Orville Goodspeed, Mrs. N. E. Stanford of this city, Mrs. R. B. Snowgrass of Portland, Or., and Charille Goodspeed and Naome Goodspeed, the last being a mere child.

East Side Union Meetings.

East Side Union Meetings.

Union evangelistic meetings are in session at the Second Presbyterian Church on the East Side_The Congregational. Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches, representing a membership of 1200 people, are engaged in the services with Evangelist Patterson of Chicago in charge. Mr. Jeffreys of this city has charge of the singing, and is supported by a choir selected from the various churches. The mornings are devoted to Bible readings by the evangelist at the Baptist Church. It is surprising to see the number that gather as early as 9 o'clock to lear the earnest preacher. Yesterday morning the theme was "Faith." At the night service the peculiar text chosen was. "I could wish myself accurated from Christ for my kinsmen according to the fiesh." It was an earnest appeal for earnest work for the saying of souls. The meetings will continue indefinitely.

HE OPERATED HERE. The Shady Record of a Stereopticon

An interesting chapter of the history of "Rev." C. H. Scott, who was recently arrested in Los Angeles, and sent north for embezzling a stereopticon in Oakland, is told by the people who knew him when he was here a year ago.

He descended upon the town in a blaze of glory, figuring as a lecturer and a plous and holy man. He scraped acqaintance with as many church people as possible, and sought recommendations from all the ministers—which they readily gave. Armed with these letters, he obtained mufty engagements to deliver lectures on "Alaska," "California," etc., illustrated with lantern yiews.

diverse and interesting litigation with which it was associated.

The story is one threaded with romance, marital intellicities and court contests, and its conclusion is pathetic. Just when the final legal obstacles had been overcome and the woman awas on the point of entéring into possession of the extensive property for which she had so long and so often asserted her claims, a stroke of apoplexy rendered her powerless to move or speak, and after a lingering, dumb suffering for nearly thirty hours, during which she was unconscious, her mind semed to clear for a moment and surface and the power of the late Judge O. C. Pratt.

Some time in 1856-86 she eloped with Raphael Abeece, a member of a minstrel troup performing in the old theater on Montgomery street, between Pine and California. The pair took passage late in the afternoon on so have not able to get more than twenty miles from port before they were overhauled next morning by Judge Pratt, who went in pursuit with a revenue cutter. At that time Judge Pratt was presiding over the old Twelfth District Court. He was a proud man, soon after resigned, never sgaln songht a public position, but a reach the property of the same great o

The Mansfields, failing to secure letters of guardianship over Mrs. Pratt, charged Mrs. Goodspeed with not having enough business education and acumen to manage her mother's estate, and an additional charge of immorality was made, the story of the elopement nearly thirty years before being revived for that purpose. But the judge decided in Mrs. Goodspeed's favor on both charges.

The another suit was begun by Mrs. Goodspeed to enjoin the Mansfields from disposing of their property, which had been so largely increased by appropriation from the Pratt estate. ## STEPPED ON HER TOE.

But the Apology Tendered Was not Sufficient:

But the Apology Tendered Was not Sufficient:

Two young men, were standing on Spring street talking to each other, and one of them, turning to depart, had the misfortune to run against a woman coming in the opposite direction. Her gaze was riveted on dress goods and late styles of liver pads in the windows, omithe accident would not have happesed. Off came the young man's hat, site he began to apologize, his friend joining in. But such a thing as apology was out of the question, and without more ado she began telling one of the young men her opinion of anybody or anything that would run into a lady on the sidewalk.

"Pardon me, madame, but—" began one of the young men ne, courteously, when she snapped back:

"Hold your tongue. I ain't talking to you. It's funny if a lady has to be stepped on by every man on the street. Why don't you look where you are going to?" she fiercely demanded of the other trembiling specimen of manhood. "Gan't you tell a lady when you see one?"

"I was about to say, madame, that you—" again spoke the young man whom she had nipped in the bud before: but he got no further, for another flood of virage eloquence broke out. When the female had got tired of announcing to the sun, moon and stars and assembled population that she was "perfect lady" the man who had been trying to speak said quietly: "I was about to say, madame, that you have been talking to the wrong man; I was the one who stepped on your foot."

The "lady" looked at him for several moments, speechless with emotion, turned red, white and blue, and then departed amid an audible smile from the audience that her eloquence had gathered.

Sixth Street School' Flag. Patriotism rose many points yesterday afternoon at the Sixth and Los Angeles-street school, when Mr. Nordholt, through C. H. Martin, presented the Stars and Stripes. Director Pitman made an eloquent speech in acceptance, Loud applause followed Superintendent Foshay's rendering of the "Star-Spangled Banner." A pretty feature of the scene was that presented when the flag shook out its folds, which were charged with roses, and the scattered petals fell among the crowd.

How Good Fellows of Pasadena Put

Up a Job.

A number of well-known Pasadenans put up a job on W. W. Everett, the Clerk of Police Court No. Two, a few days ago, which came to light yesterday. Recorder J. G. Rossiter of Pasadena, who, in the absence of Judge Morrison, at present presides in the Police Court, was one of the jokers.
Editor Gardner, City Attorney Arthur, and Constable Slater were the others.
These gentlemen were returning to Pasadena by the last electric car, having been detained in Los Angeles that late by a social event. Mr. Everett himself, who usually goes home early, had remained in the business center until it became necessary for him to take the same owl car, as he resides on Pasadena avenue just inside of the city limits.

The Pasadena electric road conductors all knew perfectly well where Mr.
Everett lives, and stop their car, when the popular Police Court cierk is on it, exactiy in front of his residence. On the night in question the late car was stopped as per schedule at the Everett bungalow; but when its owner attempted to alight he was forcibly detained by the officials of the Key of the Valley city, and in order to successfully overcome his struggles they deliberately sat on him. Finding that resistance was of no avail, Everett submitted and was carried to Pasadena, where the car arrived at 1:30 a.m.

Here his captors took their kidnaped victim to the office of Recorder Rossiter, where complaint was made by Editor Gardner that W. W. Everett was a vagrant, in that he roamed about Pasadena at late and unusual hours, etc. Constable Slater then made the arrest and City Attorney Arthur expressed his willingness to prosecute the case forthwith. Judge Rossiter, not being yet sleepy, was willing excent the victim. The trial took place, and the Recorder found the defendant guilty as charged. He was in a benevolent mood, however, and gave the prisoner a floater, with the parting admonition to get out of Pasadena as fast as he could.

But getting out of Pasadena at 3 i

EAST PORTLAND (Or..) Feb. 10.

More people have talked of California in East Portland during the past week than had been done previously in a month of Sundays. And all this talk and all this praise is for the great California Sarsaparilla—Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. It brought a great, huge flush of delight to my native face. I take a State's pride in a State remedy, and I am pleased to realize daily the increase in the praise of California in general and Joy's

Although the reports of the City Marshal to the Council for the month of February indicate that no business has been done by the officials under the city ordinance, a number of arrests have been made by the officers under State laws. Vagrancy and disturbing the peace, have been the most frequent causes of arrest.

The ordinance forbidding the assemblage of persons for religious and other ineetings on the street without permission of the authorities, does not prohibit "the blowing of tally-ho horns," as the expression "the blowing of horns" was stricken out. The tally-ho born is not considered a musical instrument in the intent of the ordinance.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION,

e delegates to the Republican mu-al convention assembled this aft-on at 2 o'clock in G.A.R. Hall and oon at 2 o'clock in G.A.R. Hall and ce somewhat late in proceeding to iness. The fact that the convention a railed at what is ordinarily the lest part of the day doubtless limits attendance to those actively instance, but the halls were both filled in the ante-rooms also contained my prominent citizens of Pasadena. The convention was called to order 2.25 o'clock by Edward Locket, irman of the Republican Central mittee. He made a brief speech, aptulating the formation of the sent Republican organization. He ted that the opposition had stated that city government was corrupt i placed before the convention the cots for which it was assembled, under Hester nominated Capt. Simple as chairman of the convention. The mended that the true and tried be placed on guard. He read the call printed two years ago in the Pasadena Star, which demanded a Republican organization in municipal affairs, and declared that a large number of the signers were those who now denounce partisan politics. Clamors for the reading of those names was resisted by Capt. Simpson, who said that he did not desire to become personal, but if those people who had withdrawn from the party two years ago were right then and are right now, he would like to know where they would be two years from now.

to know where they would be two years from now.

Frank Long of the Second Ward was nominated for secretry, and N. S. Leithead from the First Ward, and the two secretaries accordingly assumed the office. The committees were appointed as follows: Credentials, Calvin Hartwell, Judge Hester, B. F. Ball, G. A. Gibbs, George D. Paiton; on Permanent Organization, Judge Weed, W. M. Pennell, W. H. Conrad, F. S. Wallace, A. H. Conger; Rules and Order of Business, J. W. Wood, J. F. Church, Fred Swift, J. H. Walbridge, Z. L. Underwood.

After a recess of fifteen minutes for conference among the committees, the reports were made Only seven prox-ies were presented by the Committee on Credentials. On Rules and Order of les were presented by the Committee on Credentials. On Rules and Order of business the regular procedure was adopted, the nominations for City Treasurer, Clerk and Marshal preceding the nomination of the Trustees. The Committee on Platform presented the following document: "The Republicans of Pasadena, in convention assembled, reaffirm their allegiance to the time-honored principles of the party as reaffirmed from time to time in national conventions, and without faltering or wavering, fall in line for the contest of 1836. We declare it the duty of all good citizens to insist that in State, county and municipal contests, as well as national, only good, clean, patriotic and capable men should be elected to office. To that end we declare it an imperative individual duty to attend caucuses and primaries fully determined upon the defeat of corruptible and incompetent candidates. We declare that only through such action on the part of delegates is it possible to preserve the good name and enviable reputation by which Pasadena is known at home and abroad. It was the good conscience, clear judgment and shaping hand of Republicanism that laid the corner-stone and marked out the prosperity of our municipal government."

It further advocated all needed improvements in keeping with the ability of the community, an eight-hour prosperity of our municipal government."

It further advocated all needed improvements in keeping with the ability of the community, an eight-hour day for Pasadena public labor, a demand for economy in all matters, and as low a rate of taxation as compatible with public interests. The platform closed with a strong repudiation of the sentiment that it was a crime to vote a straight Republican ticket.

W. S. Wright made a speech, nominating John McDonald J. F. Church nominated Isaac Springer. A ballot developed seven votes for McDonald and twenty-four for Springer, and Mr. Church moved that the vote be declared unanimous, which was done.

Ed Lockett in a brilliant little speech named N. S. Bangham for City Clerk, Judge Weed seconded the nomination. Judge Rossiter also seconded the nomination. G. A. Chbbs nominated Heman Dyer, F. S. Wallace seconded the nomination of Capt. Bangham, who received the majority of the votes, and G. A. Gibbs moved that there be unanimity in the selection, which was done.

M. E. Wood nominated W. E. Van Kirk for City Marshal; Mr. Vall nominated John R. Slater. Mr. Jeans seconded Slater's nomination. Frank Long also seconded Mr. Slater's nomination. Mr. Slater was declared the choice of the convention, M. E. Wood moving that his selection be made unanimous.

C. C. Brown nominated George Coffin for the Council, and Mr. Staats seconded it, and it was carried by the secretary casting the ballot.

Ed Lockett nominated George D. Patton as a member of the Council from the Second Ward, and it was carried by acclamation.

W. S. Wright then made the speech nominating Calvien Hartwell as Trustee Objected to His Catarrh. "Pink" Friday is a Friday of a rather dark color, who seems to have had a bad case of catarrh, of which his father-in-law, Aaron Burke, an old colored in-law, Aaron Burke, an old colored man who keeps a boot-black stand on East Colorado street, attempted to cure him this morning. The old gentleman objected to his son-in-law's cough, and to eat his breakfast undisturbed thereby took his plate to the back porch. Pink interrupted the old gentleman at his repast, and commanded him to return to the family breakfast-room, and insisted upon his right, as master of the house, to be obeyed. Burke jeered at the infirmity of Mr. Friday, and in the altercation which ensued, that gentleman is alleged to have hurled a chair at the venerable Aaron, which struck him across the wrist. Mr. Burke thereupon, it is alleged, looked up an ax, and had not "Pink" Friday made good use of his heels, he would probably have been cured of his catarrh forever. As it was, however, he sought the aid of "Officer Bristol, who arrested the old gentleman on the charge of assault with a deadly weapon, with intent to do bodily harm, and he now languishes in duress vile, in the City Jail. man who keeps a boot-black stand on An English inventor proposes to utilize waste heaps by making them into concepte bricks. His idea is to turn to account any sort of waste, even that from destructors, by mixing in certain proportions of either destructor ashes, clinkers, chippings and dust from stone, hard sand, colliery clippings, or scavenger refuse, with blue lias or hydraulic lime. The mixture is shoveled into troughs divided into sections and afterwards passed through a brick press, or blocks may be made from the product in moulds or jackets. These are stacked and dried in the open air. The more costly processes of ordinary brick-making, namely, the setting, burning, and drawing, are avoided. The blocks or bricks usually harden in about two months, when they are ready for use.

Making Concrete Bricks Out of Waste Heaps.

Among the short-story writers who are winning recognition is W. A. Fraser of Toronto, Can. He is 35 years old and has accumulated a large amount of material, from which he draws with wisdom. He showed early in life so much artistic talent that he was destined for a sculptor but reverses of his father caused him to take up civil engineering. He has been in the interests of the profession in India, Beluchistan and many other parts of the world. He is thoroughly familiar with the barren land of Northern Canada.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES, Los Angeles, March 10, 1896. BANK TAXES. As recently men-tloned in this column, it was under-stood in San Francisco that the banks of that city were sending a large amount of money out of the State in order to escape taxation by the Asses-sor, who makes his assessment on the 1st of March. The Bank Commissioners Ist of March, The Bank Commissioners were asked to cooperate with the assessment in securing a fair assessment roll by calling upon the banks for reports of their condition on the 1st of March. Two of the commissioners of whom this request was made replied that they could not consider the question until a full meeting of the board was held in San Francisco, they being at the time in the southern part of the State. They are also reported to have declined to state whether they would favor the plan or not. Commenting upon this, the San Francisco Examiner has the following pertinent remarks:

upon this, the San Francisco Examiner has the following pertinent remarks:

"We are at a loss to know what reason the commissioners could advance for refusing to assist in securing a just distribution of the burden of taxation. The banks are at least as well able to pay their fair share of the taxes as any other institutions or individuals in the community. That they have been systematically evading them, and have special facilities for doing so, is notorious. The Bank Commissioners, as officers of the State, should be interested in seeing that the laws of the State are obeyed.

"Unfortunately, while the commissioners are officers of the State, they are paid by the banks, and they have a natural tendency to look upon the banks rather than the public as their employers. They consider themselves as a kind of special watchmen, armed with public authority, but engaged at private expense, to look after the safety of private property. It might be profitable for the State to relieve the banks of the expense of paying the commissioners' salaries for the sake of having a better chance to collect its dues on the general tax account."

PACKING SICILIAN ORANGES. The Fruitman's Guide, a New York trade paper, contains an interesting account of the manner in which the Sicilian oranges and lemons are packed for shipment to the United States and other countries. There are 500 packing-houses in Sicily, in which 3,000,000 boxes of oranges and lemons are prepared for export to this country, and half as many to England, Russia, Germany and the northern part of Italy.

There are two plang employed in the buying and packing of Sicily oranges and lemons. In one case the speculator buys, for a lump sum, the fruit on a particular tract of land, assuming all risks of the elements and basing the contract price upon estimates given by experts as to the quality and quantity of fruit upon the trees. The trees are watched and cultivated by the owner and seller, but the fruit is picked by the buyer, packed loosely in boxes and carted to the stores of Palermo.

One-third of the price agreed upon is paid upon the signing of the contract, and monthly payments are made afterward, according to the amount picked from the trees. Fallure to gather the fruit entails forfeiture of the cash advance, and the owner can sell the fruit to another buyer.

The second method is where the broker, ever present, affiliates himself with the speculator or shipper and every Saturday gets whatever orders he can at the best price for first, second and third choice. Having secured his orders, the broker starts for the district best adapted to filling his needs, and bargains with the growers, not under contract at a lump sum, but for a given number of boxes for the ensuing week. Under these arrangements, three boxes, standard size, are supposed to contain 1000-lemons, of 300 and 360 size, and five boxes are allowed for 1080 oranges of all sizes, the extra eighty being allowed for the additional waste of oranges.

The journal referred to gives the following particulars in regard to the method of packing the when the truit is brought to the packing-room, "la rifezione," no one is admitted excepting employés, as packers are jealous of each other's methods. Women select and sort the fruit from canvas-lined, flat-bottomed spacious canvas-lined, flat-bottomed spacious boxes. It is then taken by boys to the packers, close by, after which the coopers receive the uncovered box and deliver it, securely bound, to the men who pile it in the storeroom, according to grade, a man standing ready to brand it with the particular trademark assigned. The packers earn about 60 cents a day. The coopers average from twenty to forty cents a day.

"The cost of packing is from 40 to 60 cents, including cost of box, fancy paper, stencil flower, fringes and chromos which are placed inside.

"Three selections are made from the crop, one for America, one for England and one for near-by points.

"Transportation to the steamer costs about 1 cent per box, freights from Palermo or Messina 32 cents per box. The methods of buying at Messina differ from those at Palermo. In Messina the fruit is consigned to brokers by the growers and sold in the market to shippers or speculators at a price which fluctuates from day to day. At Palermo it takes about a week for the purchase, packing and shipment of 200 boxes, while at Messina this can be accomplished in a day, because of the carloads which arrive there daily, regardless of the demand.

This is the reason why 50 per cent. of the exports of Messina are on orders from foreign countries. The largest packing-house in Palermo packs about 1000 per day, while in Messina there are several with a capacity for packing 6000 boxes per day. The advantage to the buyer at Messina: is apparent, since he can purchase on the spot, while at Palermo the distance to be covered in reaching the grove and returning offers opportunity for a market fluctuation." boxes. JAPANESE HEMP. Scarcely a week passes that the introduction of some new agricultural product in California new agricultural product in California is not suggested. Some of these have become a success, while the cultivation of others has been abandoned after a short time. One of the latest crops to be introduced in California is Japanese hemp. Experiments have been made with this crop which have shown that the soil of the State is better adapted to it even than that of Japan itself. A considerable amount of this nemp is grown in Illinois, where it attains a height of almost six feet, and gives one crop a year. In California it grows to a height of twelve feet, and will give two crops a year. The market value of the article is new 5 cents a pound, and a good California acre will produce two fons of it a year.

Shares and Money.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.)

NEW YORK, March 10.—Today's stock market fell slightly below yesterday's market in point of activity, and was a purely professional affair. The debate at Washington over the Cuban unpleasantness again overthung the speculation and the sharp talk by several of the Senators had a disturbing influence in Wall street, Apart from the Washington war-talk, another important consideration is responsible for the continued indisposition of the outside public to make ventures in the stock market. This is the uncertainty prevailing in well-informed banking circles as to the immediate course of the money and exchange markets. It is cicimed that the present easy rates for call funds will, if continued, have the insvitable effect of advancing exchange rates to the gold-shipping point. There is reason to believe that, to preclude such a development, the Treasury Department will call a sufficient amount of the money due to it on government deposition of the the government deposition of the the government deposition of the trade, and, as usual, the movements in these mercurial securities were course, would immediately affect scilage rates. The present speculation in Wall street is being conducted almost entirely on call loans. Incidentally these conditions react upon the market for commercial paper. The industrial shares practically monopolized the attention of the trade, and, as usual, the movements in these mercurial securities were erraite. Sugar occupied an unusually negative position, only 2400 being dealt in as against a total of $2,700 shares in Tobacco. The general markst opened firm and fairly active. London quotations were slightly higher, although the business in Americans at that quarter is at a minimum. Advances of $4,000 shares in Tobacco. The general markst opened firm and fairly active. London quotations were slightly higher, although the business in Americans at that rate dealings were quite irregular and was the closing tone. Final figures showed from the regular (BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.)

were firm on a fairly large business, the total cales being $138,900.

that the Manufacturers' and Producters' Association has interested itself in looking up the possibilities of Japanese hemp growing in the State, and has succeeded in awakening an interest in some Bakersfield capitalists, who have decided to give the crop a trial. In about a weak Secretary L. R. Mead of the association, with others, will visit Bakersfield and form a home-produce club there. At that time the hemp proposition discussed.

An Insune Wife Keeps Her Husband's Futrifying Body.

MY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.)

MEXICO (Mo.,) March 10.—One of the most horrible tales of death and neglect that has ever happened in this part of the State has just come to light at Martinsburg, Mo. Corbner Rodes of this city received a telegram from Father Dill of the Catholic church at Martinsburg, telling him to come immediately. On his arrival he was taken to the farm of Pat Cronin, an old Irish farmer. Here an awful sight was disclosed, Lying on a bed in the room was the body of Cronin in a most advanced stage of decomposition, and the stench which filled the house was almost unbearable.

Mrs. Cronin, who has been subject to insane spells, was going about her household duties as usual, cooking a meal in the room where the corpse lay, and taking no special notice of it. Nothing could be learned from her as to when her husband died or what caused his death. It seems that Mrs. Cronin thought her husband was ill and sat up with him each night until his face became black. She then became frightened and told the priest. Mrs. Cronin has taken sick and died since. The cause is unknown. She was to have been taken to the asylum today.

about two hundred property-owners, was presented.

After the reading of various ordinances and resolutions touching on the matter of franchises and making slight amendments, Mr. Kingman introduced a resolution for the appointment of a committee of citizens outside of the board to confer with the various rallroad companies regarding franchises, It is understood the idea is to induce the two roads to own the Market-street franchise in common and establish. a union depot. President Frost appointed as members of the committee: J. J. Hewett, M. J. Daniels and George N. Reynolds.

Frank A. Miller, on behalf of the Arlington-street Rallway Company, was granted permission to withdraw the company's application for a franchise and petition for a different ordinance granting a franchise. In general the franchise now asked is much the same as the one previously asked.

The witness is ill in bed as the result of the awful shock of seeing her husband stabbed to death by her own brother. Justice Finney postponed the examination to next Saturday at 10 a.m. Meanwhile Maginnis is confined in the steel cell at the City Jail and maintains a dogged silence in regard to the murder and how it came about.

olive trees for orchard planting for some years, says that this is by far the liveliest and most rushing season for planting olive groves ever known in California, and that, while the boom in orange and lemon trees has very much subsided, the demand for olive trees comes by the thousands. Col. J. L. Howland and Mr. Loop both say that Pomona will have shipped some half a million olive trees to all parts of California when the present season of planting will close in April or May.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church are getting ready for another giving of their Eden Musée entertainment at the close of March.

The advice of The Times against planting orange groves on low lands, where there is likelihood of frost damage every few years, is well taken in Pomona. John Woy, M. M. Dewey and others have been lately engaged in taking up orange trees that were planted in soil where only deciduous fruits and farm products should be grown, and have 'removed the trees to a higher and dryer locality.

A morbid curiosity has prompted several hundred people in this place to go down the road toward Spadra to view the cheap little house where Robert Sebastian was stabbed. Pomona has not had a murder before in ten years, and this affair has therefore caused great interest here.

ange County May Yet Have an Electric Boad to Laguna and Arch Beaches.—New Second Lieutenant of Company. L.—News Notes and Personals.

SANTA ANA, March 10.—(Regular Correspondence.) There was a trial in Justice of the Peace Pierce's court in Anahelm this afternoon that was, in the language of the vernacular, "a Luiu," to say the least. A few days ago: s young fellow by the name of Heffner had W. A. Frants arrested on a charge of cruelty to animals, claiming that Mr. Frants had terribly beaten and abused a pair of ostriches which he (the latter gentleman) had been endeavoring to train to drive to a sulky. About half the town, more or less, were present as witnesses and it was when the taking of the testimony began that the fun started. In the first place the prosecuting witness had no case and the matter never should have been brought into court. There were no lawyers employed, so the witnesses, the Justice of the Peace and the jury had it all their own way. Evidently some of the witnesses had never been on the stand before and what they had to say had been primed well before they had ventured to enier the courtroom. For instance, one young man, with yellow, golden hair, when he was called to the witness box, looked wildly about him and then sank into the chair as Judge Plerce requested him to state to the jury what he knew of Mr. Frantz's treatment of the ostriches. The young man cast his eyes hurriedly around the room and finally fastening them on a bunch of cob webs in the corner of the ceiling, grasped hold of the rounds of the chair, and, in the language of the last yellow-backed novel that he had undoubtedly read, started out with his voice pitched out well onto the treble clef, about as follows, without pausing for breath or paying any attention to inflection: "On the morning of Saturday, February 29, 1896, I was sitting in the hotel at the window when I saw Mr. Frantz was leading two ostriches out of a gate I was eating an orange some one had given me when the ostrich laid down a man came along and I did not know him the man helped Mr. Frantz hold the ostrich up but the bird laid right down again so I guess he was stubborn then Mr. Frantz spushed him on up the road aways another ostrich came out of the gate then another man helped Mr. Frantz went up the road about the case." The boy still gased at the cobweb on the ceiling, the case was given to the jury of twelve men and they acquitted the defendant with

A RAIN OF ASHES.

SANTA ANA, March 10.—There was a storm of what seemed to be ashes here this evening about 5 o'clock, lasting fully ten minutes. At one time the little white soft particles were so thick as to bring out the exclamation of "Oh! snow!" from many passers by. But the temperature was so mild that the observer knew at once that the falling particles must be something else. There was no large fire near the city, but a strong wind from the desert blew most of the day. If the falling particles were not ashes, then considerable mystery surrounds the rather strange phenomenon, and even if ashes, it is not known from what source they came. Hundreds of people here witnessed the phenomenon out in the streets.

He starts with very simple propositions, and by the time he has marketed two or three crops he has had actual experience in all branches, including "differential" calculus. Growers are just now studying the comparative values of 'i. o. b.' and consignment sales. They have learned that it costs from 8 to 10 cents per packed box for picking and hauling, 4 to 5 cents for cleaning, 50 cents for boxes, wrappers, labels, packing and placing in car, 90 cents freight to eastern market, and an 8 to 10 per cent. commission if sold on consignment. Then there are rejections and dockages which vary. If sold f. o. b., the problem is shortened.

The Law and Order League presented two petitions asking that an ordinance be passed providing for the closing of saloons on Sunday. The arguments for the petitioners were made by N. Blackstock, who argued the passage of the proposed ordinance on the general ground that the sentiment of the State of California and the United States demanded a proper observance of the Sabbath day. His argument was pointed, forcible and emphatic, as gauged from the standpoint of the Sabbatarian. He stated that personally he was opposed to the liquor traffic on moral grounds, and while not desiring to threaten the board, he wanted to go on record as stating they (the board) must bow down to public opinion.

POLITICAL SITUATION.

Rumor has it that one result of the visit of Gov. Budd to the southern end of the State will be the appointment of a Ventura man to a responsible position at the Whittier School. The friends of Thomas A. Rice have been quietly working for some time past to secure for him a place on the board of control at the Whittier School, and evidently they feel reasonably certain of the success of their efforts, as the matter has become public property. Charles T. Meredith, formerly Superintendent of Schools of Ventura county, it is stated on the same authority, will not be overlooked by the chief executive when the patronage mill begins to grind. His billet is said to be in the Normal School.

J. C. Daley, Code Commissioner, returned from San Francisco Sunday hight, and with him came Superintendent of Public Instruction S. T. Black. The interest taken by Mr. Daley in seeking out the names of the members of the Congressional Committee from this, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties, leads to the conclusion that proxies will be in demand when the time for locating the Congressional Convention is determined. Cartain it is that the local political bosses are wearing very mysterious countenances and exercising very great caution in expressing opinions on the situation. The battle of words between County Treasurer Henry Clay and Dist. Atty. Poplin rests, with Clay in the lead, but the old-timers smile knowingly when the authorship of the open letter published last Saturday is anxiously looked forward to, as some double-loaded hot shot is looked for when the District Attorney replies.

(San Jacinto Register.) It may be said without boasting that California rules the dried-fruit industry of this country. In the way of apricots, prunes and raisins she has practically no competition, having driven the foreign product almost entirely out of the country. There was a time when California shipped very few dried peaches east. Now it ships nearly all used. The only competition in this line is from the South, and this is diminishing. And so it is with nearly everything else, except apples. When it is remembered that California is still in its early youth, its wonderful productiveness becomes apparent.

TWO ANTIQUATED FEMALE RE-FORMERS STRIKE THE TOWN.

Brother-in-law of the Mayor Fired Sail-Veto of the Water Ordi-

SAN DIEGO, March 10.—(Regular Correspondence.) The gentle Susan B. Anthony is among us. She arrived last night at the Hotel Florence. She ready the irreverent wags refer to Miss Anthony's lieutenant as "Sweet Emma." All joking aside, however, Susan and Emma are oharming women. As conversationalists they are captivating. Their mission to the Pa-cific Coast is for the purpose of conferring with woman suffragists with a hope of advancing the interests of cause which Miss Anthony thinks has obtained a firm foothold in this State. While the ideas of Miss Anthony are somewhat in advance of the ideas of the conservative members of the Wo-man's Parliament of Southern California. still the divergence of ideas is not sufficient to keep these promulgators of woman's rights very far apart, and no doubt Miss Sweet and Miss Anthony will be accorded a warm welcome by the leading women enthusiasts at this end of the State. Miss Anthony enjoys thoroughly—the climatic and other living delights of this land of sunshine, and appears happy indeed to be again far from the ravaging blasts of the blustery East, where the heart of man is harder than are the masculine blood valves amid the flowers, birds and sunshine of Southern California. Susan will have a warm welcome in the bay 'n climate region, and so will "Sweet Emma."

ILITTLE BILLEE'S RELATIVE.

The Right Honorable Little Billee Carlson, Mayor of San Diego, president of the Ocean Beach, the San Diego and Phoenix, the San Diego and Salt Lake Railroad companies, etc., again bobs up before the patient eyes of his San Diego flock in the role of defender of his brother-in-law, Policeman Manuel Ferrer, who, until Monday night, was a member of "de force." Councilman J. F. Warner charged Little Billee's relative with utterances derogatory to the American flag and of conduct unbecoming an officer in applying opprobrious and obscene epithes to Officer Elisworth. Little Billee's brother-in-law is believed to have a tincture of fine Castillan blood in his veins, which might account for utterances against Old Glory Just at this time. At all events Manuel was called before the Police Commissioners and examined for two hours. The board consists of Little Billee, Capt. W. H. Pringle. Omer C. Smith, Charles F. Holland and B. F. Maskey. Little Billee conducted the examination with as much enthusiasm as though addressing a boom railroad meeting. He endeavored to defend his Spanish brother-in-law, and if he keeps on at this rate and attempts to run for Congress. his Spanish sympathies may militate against his success in the campaign. Billee held that his brother's insult to Old Glory was given prior to Ferris's appointment as a policeman. On a vote of 4 to 1 the brother-in-law of the Mayor was summarily dismissed. The officer was found guilty of both charges. Little Billee was red hot with indignation. He proposes to appeal to the court for a writ of certiorari. This exhibition of the Mayor of San Diego in defending a man who has insulted the United States flag is regarded as so reprehensible as to win the condemnation of patriots. It would be intolerable to all patriotic citizens to maintain on the public payrolls a man who has insulted Old Glory. Such a man deserves and will get hearty contempt. Southern Californians are in no temper just now to tolerate utterances against the flag by any one ordinance is allowed to lie on the table. The City Attorney's opinion was that the veto had no effect on the ordinance. Little Billee's yato was based on the fact that babes were taxed as much for water as are adults.

At the Hotel Florence are Susan B. Anthony, Miss Emma Sweet, J. Snyder, San Francisco; G. W. Barnes, Toledo, O.; Mrs. C. D. Wainwright, S. Louis; Miss A. E. Wainwright, Pittsburgh; Mrs. H. C. Elliott and family, Chicago.

DUARTE.

DUARTE (Cal.,) March 10.—(Regular Correspondence.) If there is still a lingering doubt in the mind of any one in regard to Duarte oranges being the standard and leading all others in the eastern market, the following will tend to convince them of the real truth: Returns were received today from a car of oranges shipped from Duarte by the local exchange and sold in New York City by E. L. Goodsell & Co. for $1080$, and the consignee adds: "This is the tighest price paid for any oranges this year." This sale netted the grower $2.33 per box. Who can beat it? Who can equal it? The exchange managers here are taking particular pains in grading and packing and they are receiving words of praise and big prices from all eastern dealers. Duarte is not much talked about in public, simply because there is no property here for DUARTE.

praise and big prices from all eastern dealers. Duarté is not much talked about in public, simply because there is no property here for sale, except fruit, and the local people are looking after that themselves.

They are packing "big sizes" in oranges in neat half-boxes which makes fancy packages, much sought after by eastern aristocracy, who are willing and able to pay a fancy price.

The scare that is going around concerning damage to deciduous fruits by the recent storm has not reached here, and it need not. The bloom is in perfect condition and the indications are that this year's crop will be enormous.

Duarte people are taking more than a neighborly interest in the Monovia excursion tomorrow, and will do their part toward entertaining those who come this way.

The directors of the local exchange met today and decided that owing to the newness of their building and dampness of the basement they would not attempt to cure any lemons during the early part of this season. They propose to start right and maintain their clean record already established. If any grower insists on stering lemons for curing now it will be at his own risk.

Traffic on the Southern Pacific road was yesterday seriously interfered with by a terrific sand storm which raged on the line. All the trains from the East yesterday were from one to two hours late, because of a heavy sand storm that has been blowing on the Colorado desert and out near Cucamonga and Etiwanda. The crew on each train has had to help in shoveling the sand off the rails, and a gang of track laborers has been employed there (with veils over their faces) to keep the rails as free as possible of a covering rails as free as possible of a covering of imbedded sand. At some points, notably at Rochester, the sand blew across the track in great drifts, com-pletely covering the rails faster than the men could shovel it away. By the exercise of great care accidents were avoided, and when the wind died down rains were again run on scehdule time CHANGES IN SOUTHERN PACIFIC TIME.

HEAVY TRAINS ARE SAFEST. The accident to the "Sunset Limited" at Puente last Saturday night illusat Puente last Saturday night illustrates the safety of traveling on a heavy, well-built train. At the time of this accident the train was traveling at a rate of fifty miles per hour. An ordinary train would have been scattered all over the right-of-way, but the "Sunset Limited" simply acted as a wedge being driven in the ground and tearing up the track, but the cars relaned their individuality, and if it had not been for the engine knocking off the corner of the composite car when it was whirled to one side, the train would have been practically intact.

As has been reported, Naud Junction will be enlarged and made a baggage-checking station. This is rendered necessary on account of seaside trains now running through Pasadena, preventing people from checking their baggage at River Station for such trains.

A new station has just been opened at Garfield avenue, on the Pasadena branch of the Southern Pacific, with Edwin Hayes as agent. This station is located just below Raymond Hill, a fine two-story station building being located there.

A JUVENILE CRIMINAL.

Hardened in Crime While Still a

George Thompson is an appalling example of the juvenile criminal. He is only 18 years of age, but he is locked up in jail on a charge of a burglary committed in Pomona, which is only one of a series of burglaries and thefts committed with the coolness and address of one long steeped in crime.

Thompson is a native Californian, He was born in Red Bluff, Tehama county, in May, 1878. All his life he has preferred the company of crooks and low characters, and has achieved a complete education in all the wiles of the burglar. He glories in it, and tries his best to seem an old and hard-ened criminal. tries his best to seem an old and naturened criminal.

Thompson's career in Southern California was decidedly gaudy. He robbed several San Fernando-street lodginghouses, and then stole a bicycle and rode gaily away toward Pasadena. There he abandoned his first wheel and stole a second. Then he went on to Pomona. There he stayed for ten days, finally looting the home of his host while the family were at church, and departing for San Gabriel, where he sold his booty and returned to Los Aigeles. Here he robbed several other houses.

But he foolishly gave stolen jeweiry to a Los Angeles girl whom he was courting, and to her mother, and thus brought down police suspicion, which ended in Thompson's arrest a few days ago by Detective Hawley of Los An-geles and City Marshal Lorbeer of Po-mona.

which to pick the litter reenoughs that are to be elected at the coming election.

Mr. Pyle, the chairman of the committee, said that the committee had had handed to them a large number of names, but that the committee had sifted out those who were not eligible, and it left thirty-one names from which the mass-meeting were called upon to select the fifteen from.

Messrs: Thompson and Pierce were selected to act as tellers. The time consumed in counting the ballots was more than an hour, and so interested were the auditors that a pin could be heard to drop, so quiet were all present. The number of votes cast was seventy-seven; necessary to a choice, thirty-eight.

On the first ballot twelve of the thirty-one names submitted were elected, as a chlow.

There is a general expression of approval of the work performed by the citizens' mass-meeting. The gentlemen who have been selected are representative, and are in nearly every particular largely interested in the better advancement of Santa Barbara's welfare. Messrs. Taggart, Thomas. The other gentlemen who have been serected are among the most prominent business men of Santa Barbara, men wno have built it up, and men who are qualified to frame a charter in keeping with the growing needs of the place.

Shrewdness of Paderewski.

Shrewdness of Paderewski.

(Chicago Tribune:) It is no dispraise to Mr. Pederewski's art to say that he understands business as well. Indeed, he is not only able to captivate the women of California with both hands, but he has just now given instruction to the astute millionaires of the Coast so to speak, with both feet—in the matter of fees. He asked $2500 to play at an afternoon tea. He was offered $1000, and, though it had been whispered abroad that he was to entertain the guests, he did not play. Mr. Paderewski's is one-priced art, and there is no discount for cash.

Omitting from the argument the consideration that an afternoon tea may be dear at any price, some pertinent reflections may be made. For one thing, it is evident that Mr. Paderewski's rates are raised with advancing years, since his charge on his first journey was understood to be only $1500. This in turn demonstrates that he gets the price he demands—except in California—for it is idle to assume that Mr. Paderewski lacks common sense. Moreover, a rising market, as we all know, is an assured sign of better times.

Another reflection is pertinent. Mr. Paderewski's art is the product of two things external to the Janer fire of genius. These are unceasing toil and perpetual painstaking. Those lacking his consummate mental gifts may yet attain all that goes with these two last. In other words, if they expect their reward in dollars and cents, they may not reach $2500 for a single effort, but they may rise to some amount he would refuse.

In this little episode in Mr. Paderewski's life is bound up all the philosophy of success in every human undertaking.

CUBA'S FIGHT.

How the Recognition of Congress is Considered.

The Unveiling of a Statue of Pere Marquette.

Formerly Belonged to President Lincoln—The Arisona School-Land Lease.

(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

WASHINGTON (D. C.,) March 2.—
Now that Cuba's fight for recognition of belligerency by the United States government has been won in both branches of Congress, it is interesting to consider what it has gained, that is what effect according to international law the recognition of belligerency may have. Wheaton on international law thus states the question: "The recognition of belligerent, rights is not solely to the advantage of the insurgents.

thus states the question: "The recognition of beiligerent, rights is not solely to the advantage of the insurgents. They gain the great advantage of a recognized status, and the opportunity to employ commissioned cruisers at sea, and to exert all the power known to maritime warfare with the sanction of foreign nations. They can obtain abroad loans, military and naval material and enlist men as against everything but neutrality laws; their flag and commissions are acknowledged, their revenua laws are respected and they acquire a quasi-political recognition. On the other hand, the parent government is relieved from responsibility for acts done in the insurgent territory; its blockade of its own ports is respected, and it acquires a right to exert against neutral commerce all the power of a party to a maritime war. The foreign state is bound and entitled to consider the preceding history of the parties; the magnitude and completeness of the political and military organizations and preparations of each side, the probable extent of the conflict by sea and land; the probable extent and above all the probability that its own merchant vessels, naval officers and consuls may be precipitated into sudden and difficult complications abroad. The best that can be said is that the foreign state may protect itself either upon a test case that arrises or by a The best that can be said is that the foreign state may protect itself either upon a test case that arises or by a general prospective decision, while on the other hand if it makes the recognition prematurely it is liable to the suspicion of an unfriendly purpose to the tion prematurely it is liable to the suspicion of an unfriendly purpose to the parent state."

The Cubans have claimed from the start that if they could be granted belligerent rights they could overcome the Spanish troops, and it is known that Spain is in a seriously crippled condition financially, while the insurgents now have resources that are a surprise to the civilized world. Just where the funds come from is not known, but it is an undeniable fact that they are in readiness, and it is certain that arms, ammunition and food supplies will now all be purchased in the United States, which will give this country the immediate benefit of several millions of dollars in trade and continuous benefits of the same nature will be derived. Whether or not there will be drawbacks on account of the strained relations with Spain remains to be seen.

Whether or not there will be drawbacks on account of the strained relations with Spain remains to be seen.

The statue of Pere Marquette has been uncovered in silence and without any ceremonies whatever. Representative Linton, however, is not satisfied, even though the impressive solemnities conducted by Cardinal Satolil have been abandoned. The trouble is in the garb' of the great explorer, he being represented in priestly garments. The inscription upon the statue explains the reason for its presence as being the discovery of the Mississippl River. There is a mammoth oil painting representing De Soto's arrival at the Mississippl River and the planting of the crucifix, and Roger Williams is there with a bible in his hand, while Kosciusko, who was not even an American, and had no hand in American discoveries or affairs, is in statuary hall There are therefore enough precedents for the honoring of churchmen of both Protestant and Catholic faiths and non residents. The last Congress accepted the statue and Wisconsin paid $20,000 for it, and there would be no objection to the placing of a statue of Marquette, the ploneer discoverer of the Northwest, had the sculptor not unfortunately represented him clothed as he actually was. If he wore a connskincap and buckskin trousers, with a belt and pistols like Davy Crockett or Daniel Boone, there would be no objection, but the readers of history could not recognize him in such a garb. There is another Catholic painting and bust of a discoverer who was not a citizen of any state—Christopher Columbus. But in Justice to Mr. Linton it must be explained that he was not in Congress when they were placed there. It is to be hoped that some compromise will be effected by which a shawl or something can be thrown around the poloneer who was the first white man to tread the soil of Wisconsin, and whom that State delights to honor. Mr. Linton did a grand work in defeating the appropriations for sectarian schools, and is now a candidate for the Governorship of Michigan, forgetting, howe

Marquette is accorded with being the first white man to reach the shores of Lake Superior.

He was right for his fight for the separation of church and State, and the people were with him, but he should remember that Marquette disseminated the only religion he knew dying before Protestantism had gained any very great force, and while the Congressman may regret that he was a member of the priestly profession it is distinctly stated that it is not as a priest, but a discoverer, that Wiscomin honored his memory by erecting the statue.

It makes an interesting fight, however, and if Congressman Linton correctly represents the American Protective Association which is very strong and growing stronger, the statue will be sent back to the State from which it came.

On March 13, there will be an interesting trial in a justice's court, the parties to the case contending for the ownership of a white stove-pipe hat, that formerly belonged to President Lincoln. The hat was once the property of Dr P. D. Gurley, it having been presented to him by Mrs. Lincoln. In some way the government obtained possession of it, how, is not known, and it was for a long time on exhibition at the Patent Office; then it was given to O. H. Oldroyd, who conducts a Lincolr. relic museum in the house where the martyred President was carried when he was shot. Mr. Oldroyd has over 3000 Lincoln relics, but he thinks more of the old hat than any other article in bis extensive collection. Dr. Gurley died, and now his heirs have replevined the hat, which was almost destroyed in the contention that resulted between the constable who served the writ, and Mr. Oldroyd Some of the best lawyers in the city have been engaged, and the fight for possession of the battered but precious article of head-wear promises to be bitter and prolonged. Meanwhile, the hat is in possession of Dr. Gurley's heirs, a fact that Mr. Oldroyd cannot become reconciled to.

AVOID SUBSTITUTES,

Bill, that was carried in the House over his veto, by so large a majority. The law differs in no material respect from the one now in force in Oklahoma, which the President approved, and the only reason given for exercising the veto power, was that influential citizens or the new hon now have the use of the lands without paying rent, but it does not seem altogether probable that President Cleveland would be deceived in that way. The Senate today referred it to the Committee on Public Lands, and I am informed, with how much correctness I do not know, that it is likely to remain in the committee for the rest of the session. It is at least evident that the Senate is not going to act upon it as quickly as the House did. I am told that there is a story back of it.

Before the arbointment of Gov. Hughes of Arizona, charges were filed against him reflecting upon his honesty. The fact that he received the appointment is sufficient to show that these charges were met and refuted. Last June further charges were filed, and an active effort made to push them. I can state authoritatively that these were never acted upon, and the Secretary of the Interior plainly intimated to me and to Delegate Murphy that they never would be. He told Delegate Murphy that they never would be. He told Delegate Murphy that they never filed, and as good Governor. At the time the last charges were filed, other charges were filed, so there charges were made against other Territorial officials. President Cleveland and Secretary Smith was in favor of leasing the school lands, as he assured Delegate Murphy President Cleveland always has been in favor of it in other Territories. It is, therefore, confidently asserted that the veto of that bill means that the administration either intends to pursue a policy of leaving everything in Arizona precisely as it is, or that he is going to take up the charges again, and make an investigation, pending which he does not want to increase the funds passing through the hands of Arizona officials, probably the form there was no opposition in the Senate.

The experiments in the line of horseless vehicles for carrying mall matter are assuming definite shape, although it will be at least a year before anything very definite can be done. The car itself has been determined upon. It will be about 12 feet long, 6 feet wide and 6 feet high, and mail will be handled as it is now upon railroad cars. It is expected that experiments with motive power will begin in about two months, and whether electricity, compressed air or something else will be used cannot be stated, but it now seems certain that the scheme will be a success of any one of three or four methods is used. Gen. Nellson is very confident that some one of the plans now under consideration will succeed. The English postal authorities are working upon a similar plan, but have not yet advanced so far as we have. The English and United States officials are in constant correspondence, exchanging ideas, and are confident of success in the near future. The new car will not only be run in cities, but in the country as well, and will result in the extension of the postal service in rural districts and give to remote regions facilities even better than those now enjoyed by towns on many of the less important railroad lines.

dent John F. Francis of the Executive Committee of La Flesta called the meeting to order, not a chair was unoccupied.

Mr. Francis, in his opening address, expressed the thanks of the flesta managers to the Athletic Club for the interest manifested in the celebration and for cooperation in its work. He said that some comment had been made that the flesta had not been sufficiently "boomed." The managmeent, at the outset of its work, had decided to closely follow the manner in which the New Orleans Mardi Gras is conducted, and it has been believed to the greatest advantage in the undertaking. Mr. Francis announced that nearly $21,000 had been subscribed, and that the outlook was very flattering, that the entire amount required of $25,000 would be contributed in the near future. He called attention to the vast amount of advertising the flesta had received in eastern papers, and that the result would show that a great many wealthy tourists would come to Los Angeles and Southern California to witness the celebration. Mr. Francis described the floats as the handsomest that had ever been constructed in America, and asked the cooperation of the people of Los Angeles in the endeavor to make the flesta a grand success.

T. E. Gibbon, who was then introduced as the vice-president of the Terminal Railway, declared that if he could be as successful in that capacity as Mr. Francis had thus far been in managing the flesta, the Terminal Railway would have its lines extended to Sait Lake City within a year. Mr. Gibbon described the enormous benefits New Orleans has received from its annual festival, not only from a commercial standpoint, but as an advertisement. The Mardi Gras was known to everybody in the United States, and he could see no reason why the flesta should not become of equal national reputation. The climatic conditions of Los Angeles are far superior to those of New Orleans, and with the great advantages Los Angeles possesses, the flesta should not become on institution of great magnitude. He called upon the young flowers are so plentiful and so varied, there should be the grandest exposition of floral decorations. He urged the young men to take part in the floral parade and decorate their wehicles, horses or bicycles. The abundance of flowers, he contended, would in the future bring to this city a large number of painters and sculptors and in this manner Los Angeles would become an art center. He made a strong appeal to those who are able, to take part in the floral show.

C. D. Willard spoke next on the formation of flests clubs. He cited the fact that in New Orleans and St. Louis the Knights of Comus and kindred organizations had made the celebrations in these cities a grand success, and he suggested that a similar effort among the young men of this city would greatly benefit the festival and arouse a widespread enthusiasm. It was in tended to issue to ten or twenty young men of wide acquaintance, commissions in the name of the queen, authorizing them to enlist companies in her service. These clubs could form a distinct part of the parades and the identity of the participants would remain a secret. The different clubs would be uniformed These clubs could form a distinct part of the parades and the identity of the participants would remain a secret. The different clubs would be uniformed so that each would be distinct from the other, and they could take part in one or more parades and in different features of the programme. He said that the Executive Committee would be glad to receive suggestions in regard to the flesta clubs, and he expressed the hope that the idea would be acted upon by the young men.

H. Z. Osborne spoke of the material benefits this city receives from the flesta, saying that it advertises Los Angeles, and Southern California in every section of the Union.

M. P. Snyder described in a graphic manner the growth and prosperity of Los Angeles, especially during the last few years, and he believed that much of the development of this city could be directly traced to the benefits derived from the annual carnival.

Max Meyberg was then called upon, and he paid a tribute to the present management for the manner in which the flesta has thus far been handled. He said that Los Angeles could take care of itself from a commercial standpoint, but that the originators of the flesta had wisely concluded that something must be done for the entertainment of the tourists. Heretofore, the eastern people who came here to spend a few months, had nothing in the way ment of the tourists. Heretofore, the eastern people who came here to spend a few months, had nothing in the way of amusement, and in order to remedy that defect, the fleets was started. He believed that as the celebration grows older, it will improve and become ultimately of national reputation, and far greater benefit to the city. Dr. Le Moyne Wills was the last speaker, and he made a strong appeal for a grand display at the floral day. He said that Los Angeles could make as handsome and artistic an exhibition as Santa Barbara, and he urged everybody to aid the committee in its work.

A Race of Gentlemen.

(Chicago News:) Even in the wildest, most deserted portions of Japan the people met with are always polished and exhibit the true spirit of politeness. Kindly hospitality is met with at is not the monopoly of the rich or wellto-do.

A traveler on an expedition not previously made by a foreigner found in a wild valley a solitary yuba or bathhouse. An old man of eighty years received him in a manner which combined the dignity of a prince with the simplicity of a peasant. During the two days the traveler was under his roof the old man treated him with every courtesy, always contriving to let him have the bath privately. The only favor he ever asked was that he might be allowed to come upstairs and see what the foreigner ate for dinner. He was puzzled at being asked the price of his hospitality and, after much pressing, asked if 15 cents would be too much.

The kindness of civilians is almost matched by the politeness of the officials. A country policeman not only assisted a traveler to get all the needed information he was after, but even volunteered to accompany the man on his mountain climb. For four days he was a cheery companion. He was only five feet high, but his dignity was very great and he commanded respect wherever the two went. Even to the solitary summit of the mountain he insisted on wearing his two-handed sword and his white cotton gloves. His good temper was marvelous. On one occa-

and his white cotton gloves. His good temper was marvelous. On one occasion the traveler fell out of his hammock while asleep and landed on the policeman, who was sleeping on the ground below. The only remark that the Japanese made was that "he sorry to have been in the way."

The hunters of big game are interesting fellows. They are sturdy, inured to hardship and capable of great exertions. They alone know the wild peaks and difficult passes. They wear a short tunic and knickerbockers of a stout blue home-spun cloth. Leggings of hemp or closely-woven straw protect the lower limbs from brambles and snow. A chamols skin thrown over the shoulders is an addition in honor of cold weather.

(Riverside Enterprise:) It would be a very good idea if our ranchers along the line of the Motor and Santa Fé would shake or pick off the trees a very hard-looking lot of oranges that are neither a thing of beauty or a joy forever.
